

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT.

REPORT OF THE
PRESIDENT.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

With the beginning of the school year, 1891-1892, the membership of the Board was increased from fifteen to twenty-one, in other words, there were six more persons than formerly charged with the duty of carrying out the grand idea of our public school system, to do the work necessary to maintain what we have, and to add to it to meet the requirements of our steadily growing population. The reasons given for the enlargement of the Board were principally the increased work on account of annexation and the natural growth of our city. Some fears were entertained by a great many that on account of the increased membership there might not be so much harmony among the members, and consequently there would not be shown so much efficiency and such good results as formerly. The past year, however, has proved that these fears were without any foundation. Although about one-half of the members were new appointees and entire strangers to the work before them, the business of the Board has not suffered to any perceptible degree. It seemed that every new member felt the weight of the duty to be performed, and that all the members without exception used their best endeavors to work together harmoniously, and in the interest of the school system. This assertion is fully warranted when the vast amount of labor performed during the year is duly considered, and the general good results are viewed from an unbiased standpoint.

One of the first difficulties to be overcome which presented itself to the Board was the resignation of the Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Geo. Howland. Having been connected with our school system for over thirty years, in the capacity of teacher, principal and superintendent, having been at the head of the schools for the last nine years, he had acquired so thorough a knowledge of the wants of our schools that his work and his advice to the Board appeared indispensable. His resignation, although not being altogether unexpected by some of the members, came rather suddenly, and caused something like consternation among those who were nearest to him. A feeling of deep regret at losing the services of an officer so capable and faithful, mingled with the fear of the difficulty to fill the vacant place, took hold of the members of the Board, and I readily admit that the appointing of a new superintendent appeared as a very difficult task. After looking over the ground for a while the majority of members agreed upon Mr. A. G. Lane, then County Superintendent of Schools, as the man best fitted to fill the vacancy. Mr. Lane, having been connected with the public schools for quite a number of years, and having had of late years supervision of the county schools, was no stranger to the work before him, and therefore, perhaps, was in better position than any other man to take hold of the work without embarrassment. The way our schools have been guided during the year shows the good judgment of the Board in selecting this successor to Mr. Howland. A proper tribute was paid Mr. Howland by the Board on the occasion of his retirement from the office of superintendent, and, as I agree in every particular with every word contained in those resolutions, there is nothing left for me to add to them, except that I desire to say that no member of the Board, nor any one connected with the schools at the time has regretted more earnestly and deeply the resignation of Mr. Howland than I. I, however, feel that his successor has proven himself fully equal to be not only a successor in name, but a successor de facto.

While our school work is open to a good deal of improvement, and while, especially in the direction of teaching and in the personnel of our teachers, changes could not do any harm, I feel that we must be thankful for what we have. Under the existing conditions of things our schools are as good as may be expected. If we had a sufficient number of normal schools, from which we could obtain as beginners in, our schools good trained material, a change for the better as regards the mode of teaching, and the results obtained would show very soon, but, as we have no sufficient number of normal schools, we are dependent upon persons who have simply acquired the necessary knowledge for teaching, but who have no other preparation for their work. They come to our schools not as teachers, but as persons who try to become teachers, and it stands to reason, without any doubt, that besides the disagreeable work to train these persons for teachers, a great many disappointments as regards the ability of the new-comers must show themselves. A material improvement will be arrived at only after we have a profession of teachers who make teaching their life work, who are enthusiastic for it, and who have, as a foundation for their profession, a thorough training before they enter upon active work. I feel the duty to repeat once more what I said in my last year's report that a larger number of male teachers is absolutely necessary to make our schools efficient, and that, without this element, there will always be a lack of training in a certain direction.

The usual cry for more school houses and facilities made itself heard this year. We have become accustomed to it, although it has been shown that the Board has done its duty to the fullest extent as regards the erection of new school houses, and the providing of school rooms in renting buildings wherever and whenever this could be done, and I would not mention this fact in my report were it not for a new feature which made itself known in this outcry for school houses. During this year the different wards of the city came in, asking for school sites and buildings, demanding them as the rights of their particular wards, and under the leadership of some persons, who, I believe, were not actuated by real interest in the school system, but by a craving for notoriety. In any event, wherever real demands for new school houses sprung up, the Board has recognized them, and, in most cases, before such demands from outsiders were made. To show that this is the case it is but necessary to look at the list of new buildings erected and in process of erection this year. There were opened during the last twelve months the following school buildings : the Knickerbocker, the Beale, the Champlin, an addition to the Sherwood, an addition to the Ellen Mitchell, the Bancroft, the John Crerar, an addition to the Carpenter, and an addition to the Foster. There were practically completed and will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the next school year the North-West Division High, the Everett, the W. C. Goudy, the Greenwood Avenue school building, and the addition to the Forestville school. Besides these, there were in course of erection the Burroughs school, the Van Vlissingen school, the addition to the Holden school, the Alice L. Barnard school, the Hermann Raster school and the John Ericcson school. Considering the means at hand, and the possibilities of erecting new buildings, this is undoubtedly all that could be expected of the Board. Besides these new buildings opened for school use there were added to our rented rooms for school purposes buildings, stores and rooms, the rent of which amounted to forty-five thousand ($45,000) dollars per annum. Great preparations have been made for a large number of new school buildings for next year, and, if building new houses can be carried on to the same degree during a few more years, the School Board will be in a position to say that they have then caught up with the demands made upon them.

The enrollment of pupils during the last year showed an increase of about eleven thousand (11,000) as compared with the school year of 1890-1891. The number of new teachers appointed is in proportion to this increase. The work in all business departments has increased in the same proportion, and it is but necessary to give an extract from the report of the Committee on Finance to show the vast amount of actual business done by this body. The payments for janitors' and engineers' salaries amounted to two hundred and thirty-three thousand ($233,000) dollars, and the amount paid for office employes a trifle over forty-three thousand ($43,000) dollars, for teachers' salaries two million five hundred and fifty-six thousand ($2,556,000) dollars, for school sites eighty-two thousand ($82,000) dollars, for new buildings six hundred and eighty-eight thousand ($688,000) dollars, for incidental expenses thirty-six thousand ($36,000) dollars, for permanent improvements eighty-two thousand ($82,000) dollars, for general repairs one hundred and sixty-six thousand ($166,000) dollars, for heating and ventilating apparatus seventy-one thousand ($71,000) dollars, for rental of school rooms forty-five thousand ($45,000) dollars; to these amounts the sums paid for supplies and other minor matters are to be added. These figures will give a general outline of the business done by this Board. It will be readily seen that but few business houses in this large city do as large a business as the Board of Education. There is, outside the city administration, no other corporate body that does as much business and spends as much money as the Board of Education, and, while the importance of this Board is not generally understood and appreciated by the public, the members themselves are fully aware of it. The business of the Board has been divided among a number of departments, which, I fully admit, have been governed in an admirable way by their respective chiefs, but there is, in my opinion, one element lacking to bring the matters of the Board down to a solid business basis. Up to the present time there is really no person who stands at the head of all the business offices of the Board, and who has a voice in deciding the different business matters, and who is responsible for what is being done. The President of the Board is charged with certain duties, and enjoys some privileges which, in a measure, may place him in such a position, but the rules of the Board do not give him that power which, for instance, the manager of a business enjoys, and which he must have in order to run the business successfully. The President of our County Board, for instance, is really the head of the business affairs of the body, and if he exercises good judgment he can save the County many dollars, and can bring about a sound, careful administration. I think the President of the Board of Education should be placed in a similar responsible position. He should be the actual head of the business departments. All reports from different chiefs, the business agent, the chief engineer, etc., should come to him, giving him a clear oversight of all matters attended to by the different departments, and thereby affording him an opportunity to advise the Board of what is going on, and adjust matters as they may come up. The actual business of the Board has grown to such proportions that some such measure will become necessary in the near future, and, while I am not ready to make a distinct suggestion or lay before the Board a carefully considered plan, I most earnestly desire to call the attention of the Board to this matter, leaving it to them to carry out the idea if they see fit to do so.

In retiring from the Presidency, I at the same time withdraw as a member of the Board, after a continuous service of seven years. During this period I have done my duty as I understood it, and in the discharge of same have tried to be just and fair to everybody with whom I came in contact. In return I have been the recipient of a great many courtesies and kind words, and feel to-day deeply indebted to the Board for honors conferred upon me. I bid farewell to our Superintendent and Assistant Superintendents, to our office and other employes, and especially to my colleagues of the Board. I know no better wish for them than that they may retire when their time comes with the same feeling of satisfaction as I do now.

Respectfully,

LOUIS NETTELHORST.

President.

REPORT
OF THE
SUPERINTENDENT.

To The Board of Education, City of Chicago:

This thirty-eighth annual report of the Schools of Chicago will give the usual statistics of total population, children of school age, number of pupils enrolled, cost of instruction per pupil, promotions, school accommodations and many other items of information which are valuable for reference and comparison. Daily during the school year, the children have voluntarily left their homes, entered the school houses, assumed daily duties, exercised self-control, and submitted to authority. Daily the teachers have greeted them kindly, moulded them in their manners and conduct, directed them in their lessons, led them in their unfolding thought, and influenced the development of their mental and moral characters. Could a statement of the number of children who have been made better by the year's instruction be presented, could the accumulation of moral power manifested in each life be portrayed, then would be presented the vital statistics which would represent the result of the work of thirty-three hundred teachers with 157,743 children.

The following are some of the more important statistics which have been annually submitted:

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS.

At the close of the year in June there were twelve High Schools with 5,796 seats ; one hundred and twenty-four combined Grammar and Primary School Districts and forty-six Independent Primary School Districts with 126,669 seats. There were eighty-four rented buildings having 201 rooms with 8,773 sittings.

The Committee on Buildings and Grounds have used all the money that was appropriated and the school accommodations have been somewhat increased. Buildings of sixteen rooms with a hall having a seating capacity for four hundred persons, have been constructed, and are very complete in all of their furnishings. The system of heating, lighting and ventilating is approximately perfect. The sanitary and other appointments make the buildings equal to the well constructed business blocks in our city. Six new buildings have been completed and occupied during the past year, namely :

Bancroft.....	864	seats,	16	rooms	and	assembly	hall.
Beale.....	864	"	16	"	"	"	"

Ellen Mitchell, Addition.	808	"	17	"	"	"	"
New Champlin.....	648	"	12	"	"	"	"

Six other new buildings are under contract and in process of construction. The increased membership for the year of 10,992 required thirteen large buildings, so that if the twelve buildings had been completed and occupied, sufficient provision would not have been made for one year's growth of the city.

The amount expended for sites and building purposes during the year, was $821,984.27. Reference to the detailed report of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds will give other information.

ATTENDANCE.

The whole number of different pupils enrolled during the year was 157,743, an increase of 10,992 over that of the previous year; the average daily membership was 126,584, an increase of 10,008. The number in rented rooms at the close of the year was 8,633; in double or half day divisions 18,669.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.

Two examinations for certificates to teach in the city schools were held during the year. At the first no conditions for admission to the examination were imposed. At the examination held in December, only graduates of our high schools or other institutions of learning having an equivalent course of study, and teachers who have had at least one year's experience in teaching, were admitted. The following are the results:

Four hundred and fifteen teachers were assigned to positions during the year, and one hundred and twenty-six resignations were received.

Between four and five hundred new teachers are required annually to fill the vacancies, and to meet the demands of the increasing population. At least one-third of these must be experienced teachers, and they are being obtained from the County, the State and from other States. Most of the experienced teachers are graduates of high schools, normal schools or colleges. Those who have never taught are graduates or under-graduates of our own high schools. They have had no special preparation for their work as teachers. They are assigned to schools as cadets, where they assist the regular teachers. After two months they receive a compensation of seventy-five cents a day. They are assigned to vacancies as they occur, provided they can fairly manage a room. Our system of cadet-ing gives the opportunity of becoming familiar with the general school management and methods of discipline, and also gives some limited knowledge of the methods of teaching in the particular grade to which cadets are assigned. They receive no instruction on educational principles. They know nothing of the relations of the different studies except as they may learn them from the teachers with whom they are associated. They require special training from the teachers of drawing and music. Principals are obliged to give them extra time and attention whenever placed in charge of a room, that their teaching may be fairly effective. They spend from six months to a year learning how to teach and receive compensation while they are practicing. In St. Paul, St. Louis, Washington, New York, Boston and other large cities they have a system of cadeting similar to ours except that they require it after one or two years of special instruction in a training school for teachers. None are admitted to their training schools until they have completed the four years' course in the high school of the city. When they enter the schools, they have been made familiar with the full course of study, the requirements of each grade, the relation of each subject to other subjects, the methods of teaching, and have received special training for every department of the graded work.

Chicago needs a school for the training of teachers, and only those who have completed a full high school course of study or its equivalent, should be admitted.

TEACHERS' MEETINGS.

The monthly meeting of principals, which is held in the rooms of the Board of Education, continues to be an agency for the presentation and discussion of educational principles and theories. The papers which are presented from time to time by the principals indicate that conservative ideas govern most of the work that is done in our schools. There is sufficient freedom left to the principal in carrying out the details of the course of study to bring into use a variety of methods of reaching a result. The importance of basing all work upon correct educational principles is quite generally recognized. The application of those principles is a fruitful theme for discussion.

The division superintendents hold two meetings for the teachers of each grade in their respective districts during the year. These meetings afford an opportunity for specific instruction in the studies of the grade, with a discussion of the methods and principles which should underlie the teaching. Frequent class exercises are given, in which good methods are illustrated. Direct instruction is given to the teachers in arithmetic, grammar, geography, history, voice training, music and drawing. Nothing so circumscribes the power of a teacher as a limitation of her knowledge to the text book. It is the full knowledge of a subject to be presented to a class that enables a teacher to arouse individual thought and sharp mental activity on the part of her pupils. It is the direct contact of mind with mind that brings the greatest growth. But little time is given in the grade meetings to the discussion of questions of management and discipline. Teachers are imbued with the thought that when the teaching is effective, when the work is adapted to the child and he is fully occupied with it, discipline and good order can be easily secured.

The principals hold one meeting each month with their teachers in which general questions of school management and government are considered. Some of them take up the systematic study of pedagogical works. Wherever the principal and teachers have thoughtfully and earnestly co-operated in search of the true laws that govern the mental growth of children and the conditions best adapted to their development, there has been a right spirit, a noble purpose, an attractiveness and interest which were the direct outgrowth of these meetings.

The teachers of the high schools have maintained a meeting of their own, in which topics directly related to their departments were discussed. The science teachers have through their monthly conference done much to arouse enthusiasm in biological and physical research, to extend laboratory methods of instruction, and to unify the science teaching throughout the city.

It is gratifying to know that many of the teachers are deeply interested in the various literary and scientific associations of the city, and that the profession of teaching is being brought to a higher standard by these means. The teachers quite generally recognize the valuable aid afforded by the various educational publications of the country, and in nearly every school a teachers' club is formed, and the best educational publications are read. The ideas, thoughts and plans suggested are tested, and either rejected or applied.

ELEMENTARY INSTRUCTION.

Children live and grow to the school age under different material surroundings. The names of familiar objects are learned. They possess form, color and relations. They have uses, which inspire thoughts and questions, that lead to the use of familiar names to express the qualities and relations, which their observation has acquired. Some children possess mental activity because they have grown minutely observant of everything around them. Every flower arouses the keen sense of beauty, and sharp, direct observation leads to a knowledge of its form, color, fragrance and distinguishing qualities. Every pet is endowed with attraction because there is activity, a degree of intelligence, beauty of form, grace in motion, and companionship, which appeal to the growing element within the child. Every sense of taste, feeling, hearing, smelling and sight is aroused; every avenue of sense perception is open to receive a knowledge of attributes and qualities, and to determine the uses of each surrounding object. Expression of the ideas must follow. The struggle is begun by the effort to enunciate the suggested words which will express the idea. Effort is inspired by voluntary action of the will; repeated efforts bring the desired power.

Such are the conditions that environ a child in his training in the nursery and in the home before he attains the school age. In no period of his life does he so quickly gain a knowledge of things, of their names and distinguishing qualities or characteristics. Attention is easily aroused and secured. Upon the presentation of every new object or thought, he immediately appropriates the terms that are used for its expression. Could the same conditions exist in the school room, when the child comes from the freedom and activity of the home, how rapidly he would recognize the symbols that represent the terms which have become familiar to him in the language already acquired?

LANGUAGE.

Language is a part of our course of study from the first grade until graduation from the high schools. The power to obtain thought and to express it definitely in well chosen words and in sentences direct and simple, is one of the most important acquisitions in education. Conversational lessons afford the best means of inspiring thought and securing its oral expression. Then should follow the written forms. The amount of written language in the first four grades should be kept at the minimum. The effort to express a child's thought in his own language in writing requires the exercise of the power to think, the ability to put the thought into a language which can be spoken, and the execution of the symbols of that language in correct form, thus embracing composition, spelling, penmanship and punctuation.

READING.

After the power to read has been acquired, literature brings in her wealth of contributions, offering the child that which will be of absorbing interest. The fairy tales, the lives of children in other countries, their dress, customs, habits of living and the character of the country in which they live, all become interesting. All reading should be for the purpose of getting and giving thought. No process of learning to repeat words, which obscures the thought element, should ever be tolerated. Where the interest is maintained in the thought, new symbols to express it can be readily learned. It is of the utmost importance that no reading lesson should be repeated often enough to be memorized, or to lose its interest. The selection of new reading about the same subject, provided the words used have been learned by the child, will give new ideas and best secure familiarity with the symbols. All supplementary or sight reading in the primary grades should be much easier than the specially developed lesson. The study of words and their construction or derivation, the recognition of similar elements in words, are valuable accessories in cultivating the habit of quick recognition, but when made too prominent they divert from the true purpose of the reading lesson.

The regular grade reading book is used for instruction, spelling, definitions, voice development and expression. Cheap, pure, instructive and attractive books, magazines and papers are abundant. To develop the power to acquire knowledge, and to cultivate the love of good literature, selected supplementary reading has been provided.

The Riverside Literature Series, embracing choice selections adapted to all grades, have been furnished during the year to each school, in addition to the other authorized supplementary reading.

A list of the books for each grade, supplied by the Board of Education, can be found in the appendix of this report.

SPELLING.

All written work that is placed upon the black-board or upon written charts should be executed as correctly as possible, because the eye of the child constantly rests upon these forms, and he is obtaining an image which he will surely reproduce when he makes the effort to write.

The written reproduction of a word is the most effective and complete means of learning to spell. Oral spelling is an aid in securing correct pronunciation, and in learning the order of the letters which form the word. It is important that the words be such as a child can comprehend, use and reproduce.

FORM, COLOR, DRAWING.

The attention which is given to form study, the modeling in clay, color, the arrangement of tablets in designs, the study of the spectrum, all constitute important features of the primary work. In these exercises perception and judgment are cultivated, and the child is led to an active expression of his observations. Picture representations of objects or ideas are encouraged, and drawing with pencil or crayon has been made free and bold.

Light and shade have been introduced into the grammar grades and water colors have been used in the seventh and eighth grades, giving life and interest to the drawing. Less time has been spent in the outline drawing of type forms and much more work has been done from natural objects.

MUSIC.

Music in the public schools is serving a high purpose in the discipline and culture of children. In all departments much attention is given to the training of the voice, developing purity of tone and adapting it to the thought. Many rote songs are taught which express thought and emotion, and which are appropriate to the season or to prominent anniversaries. The supervisors have sought to teach children to read music at sight, as they would read a page from a book, being careful to have the selection easy and attractive.

PENMANSHIP.

Penmanship is learned by constant imitation of the writing placed upon the blackboards by the primary teachers, or of the models found in the copy books. The system of drawing has developed the power to determine form and relations, and much of our penmanship is the result of a careful study and reproduction of the model letters. Thousands of children are imitating the same general form of letters; the results are consequently very uniform.

During the year all the copy books of a designated grade, in schools selected from various parts of the city, were called for and were immediately brought to the rooms of the Board for inspection. Books from the second to the sixth grade were presented. The neatness and uniformity of the work was commended. The superintendents, however, observe a great difference between the work found in the copy books and the papers daily presented to the teachers by the pupils. Whether a pupil's penmanship is good or bad is shown in his free work rather than in his copy book. Freehand writing cannot be obtained without more practice than is now given to it in the public schools. The liberal use of practice paper and the freehand drill exercises that are given in the Commercial Colleges are being substituted for much of the copying, and better results are obtained. It cannot be said that the penmanship of the pupils in their written exercises is generally excellent. It is a physical impossibility for some children to apply the correct principles of penmanship, because they are obliged to sit at desks so high that it is necessary to take a side position, raise the whole arm from the shoulder, and rest it on the desk. The positions thus assumed by the children are injurious, and the eyes are weakened by being used at a wrong angle of vision. An effort has been made to reduce these evils to a minimum, but they cannot be wholly eradicated until desks can be adjusted to the needs of the children.

GEOGRAPHY.

Physical geography no longer constitutes an independent study in the high schools, but is included in the various studies relating to geology, astronomy and mineralogy. The construction of continents, the subject of drainage, glaciers, trade winds, ocean currents, formation of soils, etc., are now included as essential elements in the study of a continent. It has been deemed best to eliminate most of the detailed study of insignificant cities, rivers, capes, etc., from the work in geography in the grammar grades, and to substitute therefor a broader knowledge of soils and how they were formed, of the distribution of plants and animals, of the causes of climatic changes that affect the physical and vegetable life of a country. As the text books do not include the elements of physical geography, the teachers have taught it in the form of oral lessons.

HISTORY.

In the study of United States History the effort has been made to still further eliminate those unimportant facts relating to settlements, battles and the topics under various administrations. More attention has been given to the history of political parties, the study of the ideas which they represent and the relations which we sustain to various countries. The study of the literature of the country, the scientific discoveries and inventions have been made prominent. Very little is done in the way of memorizing. Text books for reference are consulted to obtain more extended information about subjects than is generally given in the school text books in history. The leading facts of English History are also studied.

The work in the seventh and eighth grades is preceded by the reading of Monroe's Story of Our Country in the sixth grade, and Dodge's Stories of American History in the fifth grade.

Attention is given to topics of current history, and newspaper articles are frequently read in the school rooms. Our pupils are thus learning to have some general knowledge of the events that are transpiring throughout the world, and that relate to the changes in the conditions and the development of the human race at the present time.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

The systematic training in physical culture that has been prescribed for the primary, grammar and high school pupils is under the care of twenty-five special teachers who visit the schools once a week and give special instruction to the teachers and pupils. The teachers are becoming familiar with the manual of the exercises and are enabled to continue them every day. Careful observation and investigation show that the children need this kind of training to overcome the tendency to the stooping posture in studying, and physical weakness that is the outgrowth of the habits of a city and school life. It has been demonstrated that under proper systematic physical training, good health and a well developed physical form can be cultivated. The only aids thus far used in the development of the German system of physical training are the wand and the dumb bells. The good results observed include better breathing on the part of the pupils, more erect forms, and the better command of the body in recitation and movement.

GRADE PROMOTIONS.

The advancement of pupils from one grade to another was for many years determined by a written examination, given by the Principal. The failure of a pupil to pass it caused his retention in the grade, frequently from six months to a year, until another class was ready for promotion. Review and repetition became wearisome, and the mental growth of the child was depressed and dwarfed. It has been the aim of the Superintendents to have the promotions made from grade to grade upon the basis of the knowledge of the child's power possessed by the teacher and principal, and not upon any special or final review examination.

The primary departments have two or more rooms in the same grade. Classes are arranged so that promotions may be made in September and February of each year. The grades embrace one year's work, which is what the average child can accomplish. Where the teaching is direct and effective, a class may be able to go over the outlined work of the grade in less time. Many children have the power to comprehend any work in the grade when it is first systematically presented. In most of our schools, individual promotions are made at any time according to the pupil's ability. As class promotions in the primary and in some of the grammar grades are made at intervals of five months, it is possible for children to pass through a grade in that time. Many thus finish the work in the primary and grammar departments in six years. This number could undoubtedly be greatly increased if children were taught to the measure of their power or capacity, and if the work required of them was adapted to mental growth.

The oral test has always been the most direct method by which the teacher daily determines the exactness of a pupil's knowledge of a lesson or subject.

Written tests are constantly given to determine the spelling, punctuation, exactness of thought, and power of expression. They show the teacher the defects of individual pupils as well as those which are common to a class, thus enabling her to give specific instruction to correct them. They constitute a standard for determining the relative power and advancement of pupils. They reveal to the pupil the specific evidences of his weakness or strength.

There is no better standard of determining a teacher's success than her ability to know the attainment and capability of each child in the room. The classification of the pupils is the work of the principal. He must use some means of confirming or rejecting the teacher's estimate of a child's fitness for promotion. This he can do justly, only by frequent oral examinations of the pupils in their class recitations, where there is freedom from the restraint which attaches to a formal examination. All promotions from grade to grade, including admission to the high schools, are made upon the recommendation of the principal.

In the regular written work of delinquent children can be found all the testimony that is needed to justify the teacher and principal, in case complaint is made that a child has been unjustly kept from promotion. That a child is not able to be promoted with his class should not be announced for the first time at the end of the year's work. The teachers and principal are bound by the responsibilities of their positions to keep parents informed about the progress of their children; hence frequent reports are made to the parents. The closer the co-operation of the parents and teacher in the education of a child, the more effective and successful will be the daily work.

UNGRADED ROOMS.

It is difficult to conduct a large system of schools, so as to meet the wants of delinquent pupils and to give them the personal attention that is necessary. This delinquency is caused by irregular attendance, by removal from place to place, by lack of mental endowment and habits of application. It is sometimes caused by inefficiency of the teachers. Our system of instruction is planned for twelve years, and the grades are intended to represent one year's work. It is found that many of the pupils do not reach a fair degree of efficiency in the grade within the year, and a careful examination of the progress of the pupils has disclosed the fact, that there is quite a large number who have been obliged to spend from one and a half to two years in a grade. These pupils need more direct personal instruction in order that they may be advanced in the grades within a reasonable time. How to provide for these in our schools has been a problem. The experiment has been tried of selecting one of the best teachers in a school to take charge of pupils who are delinquent for any cause, and to give them more direct attention. The success of this work has depended entirely upon the effectiveness of the teacher and her power to determine the mental acquirement of each pupil, and what was needed for his growth. Probably ten per cent. of all our pupils need this special instruction to enable them to retain an interest in their work and to properly advance according to their years of attendance at school. As soon as these pupils are able to advance a grade and become adjusted to existing classes of about their own age, they are transferred to their proper grades again. Of course such rooms will never be permanent, but must from time to time change in the character of their work. These purposes are kept in view in establishing and conducting such rooms; first to aid the weak, to arouse the indifferent, and to advance them to a grade where there will be a continued interest which will bring growth; second, to afford children who have been partially educated in foreign countries, and who enter our schools in the lower grades, an opportunity to quickly acquire our language and become adjusted to our work.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

There were 3,887 promotions from the eighth grade of the grammar schools to the first year of the high school. Of this number the average daily membership for the first year in the high schools was 2,078. The total enrollment in all grades was 5,643. The West Division High School has been very fully equipped during the year for practice in physics, chemistry and biology. The North and South Division High Schools are still poorly prepared for any proper laboratory work. There has been an effort to make the study of all sciences as practical as possible. Classes with their teachers have frequently made excursions into the country in their investigations in geology, zoology and botany. The teachers have during the summer vacations secured specimens which have been used for dissection in the study of animal life. Aquariums have been supplied to some of the high schools where the characteristics of water animals are studied. Drawing is very freely used for illustration in the sciences and other studies.

The course in English has proved very satisfactory. Pupils are required to read and analyze standard English writings.

The number who are preparing for admission to college has increased so much that it has been deemed best to re-establish the college preparatory course of study. This course permits a pupil who is preparing for college to omit all studies that are not required for his admission.

ENGLISH HIGH AND MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

The Chicago Manual Training School was organized in 1883 under the patronage of the Commercial Club of Chicago for the purpose of developing manual training as an element of common school education. As soon as it was demonstrated that such a school was demanded by the people, and that the work constituted an important element in the education of a boy, the Chicago Board of Education established, September, 1890, in connection with the public schools, the English High and Manual Training School.

The course of study embraces, in the first year, algebra, zoology and botany, English and rhetoric, freehand and mechanical drawing, the use of the microscope, carpentry, joinery, cabinet work, wood turning and pattern making. The second year, geometry, physics, general history, English, business forms or elements of bookkeeping, mechanical and freehand drawing and iron work at the forge and foundry. In the third year is presented trigonometry, higher algebra, chemistry, civil government, political economy, American and English classics, mechanical and architectural drawing with freehand sketches, machine-shop work, management and care of machinery. Some demand has been made for instruction in shorthand and typewriting, and these are permitted in the third year as a substitute for mathematics. Those desiring to enter technical schools are permitted to take French or German. There were 259 pupils enrolled during the year. The first class to complete the course of study, which numbered eleven, graduated June 24, 1892. There is every indication that the number of boys who will apply for admission to the Manual Training School will continue to increase, and that similar schools will be required in the South and North Divisions of the city.

SEWING.

Sewing was introduced into the second, third, fourth and fifth grades of the schools in January, 1892, by the action of the Board of Education, and one hour a week was set apart for this form of manual training for girls. The regular grade teachers give the instruction in sewing, following the directions of the supervisor, Mrs. Ella B. Vanarsdale, who was selected from the corps of teachers. The work outlined for the first six months embraced the running, basting, over hemming and back stitches. The stitches were made upon unbleached white cotton cloth, torn into pieces 9x18 inches, using red thread, that the work could be easily examined and the regularity and system in the stitch be observed. The first effort of the girls demonstrated the fact that probably one-half of them had no practical knowledge of sewing, nor had they ever been directed in their efforts to learn. The good results which were soon manifest proved that the training in form and color which had been given to the children for several years had developed the judgment, the sense of proportion and the power to quickly take up the sewing. They also show that the general discipline and training received in our public schools give a power of adaptation to many of the world's occupations.

The outline of the work for the second to the fifth grades inclusive embraces the following:

Second Grade.—Position of pupils, use of thimble, position of needle, action of taking a stitch, length of thread, threading the needle, making a knot, position of left hand for holding work, basting even and uneven, running, overhand, overcasting and hemming stitches, outline of name in running stitch. After the work of the grade has been completed, a work bag may be brought from home and made, or wash cloths and towels hemmed.

Third Grade.—Review work of second grade. Stitching, back stitch, outline stitch, plain, bias and French fell. Name in outlining stitch. After the work of the grade has been completed, work brought from home may be table napkins, towels, bags and pillow slips.

Fourth Grade.—Gathering, sewing on a band, button hole, sewing on a button, patching. After the work of this grade has been completed, work brought from home may be kitchen aprons, ruffles to hem and gather, and garments requiring button holes.

Fifth Grade.—Gusset, darning, tucking, herring-bone, feather stitching, hem stitching and button holes. When the work of this grade has been finished, garments to be patched or darned, and flannels requiring feather or herring-bone stitching may be brought from home.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

The public evening schools, which were first established in 1856 in what was then called the West Market Hall, on Randolph street near Desplaines, were sustained by the public school teachers without compensation. In 1863 the Board of Education of Chicago first established a public evening school in the Dearborn School Building on Madison street west of State street, and the teachers were paid for their services. They have been maintained each year since that time. An examination for night school teachers was held Sept. 17, 1891. There were 301 applicants, and 80 were successful. The enrollment for the season of 1891-92, which continued twenty-four weeks, from the first Monday in October until the last of March, was 14,933, and 345 teachers were employed. The evening schools have been mostly patronized by boys and girls who have been compelled to leave school to labor, and by a large class of foreigners who do not speak the English language. The older pupils have always been very regular in their attendance and zealous in their efforts to acquire the power to read and write. Nearly one-half of those enrolled in the night schools during the year 1891-92 were persons speaking a foreign language.

The demand for instruction in stenography, typewriting and bookkeeping has steadily increased, and there were 1,800 persons enrolled in what were termed the evening high schools where these subjects were taught. The preceding year there were 793 enrolled in two high schools. The increase of over 1,000 pupils is the result of opening schools at the South Division, North Division, Lake and Englewood High Schools.

The money thus expended for evening schools is a good investment. The opportunities offered for improvement and instruction have been used by many who otherwise would have been deprived of this means of self culture.

KINDERGARTENS.

The first kindergarten was established in Chicago in 1867 by Mrs. E. W. Blatchford. For several years it was the only kindergarten in Chicago. A society known as the Froebel Association was organized years ago for the purpose of training kindergartners and establishing kindergartens for the care of children under the school age of six. Subsequently two other societies were organized, known as the Free Kindergarten Association, and the Chicago Kindergarten College. The census returns show that there were ninety-two kindergartens in 1892 with an enrollment of 3,392 children. Ten rooms in the Chicago Public Schools have been granted to kindergarten societies for the organization of schools. These local associations have paid the teachers and assistants. When the children attain the age of six they enter the first grade of the public schools. The children thus admitted to the public schools from the kindergartens are not promoted as classes, but they enter the different schools at irregular intervals; consequently there is no way of so following the child's progress from the kindergarten to the higher grades as to determine the value of such special training. In other cities where the kindergarten is recognized as a part of the public schools, classes are promoted from the kindergarten to the first primary divisions as a class; the fundamental principles of kindergarten teaching are recognized, and instruction in harmony with the same is continued in the primary grades, thus giving the means of determining the value of the kindergarten instruction in mental training. The proposition presented to the Board of Education asking that the kindergartens already established in the public schools be adopted by the Board, is worthy of much careful consideration. If the value of the kindergarten instruction in the educational training of the children is to be fairly tested, it should be made a part of the school system, and our primary work should be brought into harmony with it.

MANUAL TRAINING IN THE GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

Hon. Richard T. Crane offered to furnish the necessary tools, benches, material, and a teacher to give instruction in the use of wood-working tools to as many boys of the seventh and eighth grades of the Grammar School as could be accommodated. The Board of Education granted him the use of rooms in the basement of the Tilden School, corner Lake and Elizabeth streets. Twenty-five carpenters' benches were purchased with a complete outfit of woodworking tools for each. Arrangements were made for classes to work two hours a week. Three classes from each of the following schools: Tilden, Washington, Carpenter, Emerson and Skinner were instructed. Thus fifteen classes, or over 300 boys, were taught by one teacher.

The following work for the two years' practice has been outlined by the teacher, Mr. R. F. Beardsley :

FIRST YEAR.

Rip sawing.—Lecture on the rip saw.
Cross-cut sawing.—Lecture on the cross-cut saw.
Marking and lining.—Lecture on measuring and measuring appliances.

Working drawing of the same.—Lecture on drawing.
Working drawings.
Chisel practice.—Lecture on cutting wedges.
Chiseled bracket.

Half lap joint.—Lecture on the back saw.

Foot stool (four lessons).—Lecture on bench hook, glue, shellac and varnish.

Working drawing of footstool.—Lecture on hidden lines.

Dovetail joint.—Lecture on construction of drawers.

Boot-jack and working drawing of the same.

SECOND YEAR.

Slip mortise joint.—Lecture on timbers.

Through mortise joint.—Lecture on seasoning.

Frame.—Lecture on felling.

Double mortise joint.—Lecture on shrinkage.

Knife-box and working drawing.—Lectures on drawing sections, etc.

Dovetailed box.—Lecture on nomenclature.

Dovetailed drawer.—Lecture on characteristics of good timber.

Pigeon holes.—Lecture on pine.

Medicine cabinet.—Lecture on oak and quarter sawing.

Selected work.—Lecture on various hard woods, tar, pitch and turpentine.

The interest which has been manifested by the boys has been very encouraging, and the experiment thus far has proven very satisfactory.

The school was opened on the first of January, 1892.

Another year's work will be necessary before the value of this kind of training as an element in a general education can be demonstrated. There is a growing demand for instruction in the mechanic arts, and the boys will be retained longer in the grades of our grammar schools if these opportunities for manual training can be given throughout the city. In Washington, D. C., the experiment has been tried for five years. The course of study embraces two hours of shop practice a week for two years, and is continued as a part of their High School system.

SLOYD.

The Sloyd system of manual training, which outlines work for pupils in primary and grammar grades, was introduced into Lake View No. 2, Foster and Jones Schools as an experiment.

A room in each school was fitted up with suitable benches and a few tools. In the lower grades the knife is used to cut out designs in thin pieces of wood and cardboard. In the higher grades a series of objects are constructed, bringing into use the saw, hammer, file, plane, and chisel. Drawing is made a part of the instruction, and every object is sketched in outline. Many children, who were indifferent to the general school work, have manifested great interest in the Sloyd. The experiment must be continued for at least two years longer to fairly test it.

COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE.

The reports of this department will show the large number of visits made by the Attendance Agents, and the number that have been returned to the schools or that have entered the schools for the first time as the result of special investigation.

In some sections of the city great good has been accomplished, and children have been placed in the schools who would otherwise have been on the streets. As no penalty for willful violation of the Compulsory Laws has ever been imposed, many have learned to disregard the official notices which have been sent them, and have positively refused to comply with the requirements of the law. Many instances have been reported where parents and guardians have willfully compelled young children to labor that they might profit by their small earnings. Had the law been enforced in a few of the extreme cases of such violations, as reported by the Attendance Officers, the effect would have been wholesome on a large number who would have immediately complied with the reasonable provisions of the statutes. In contrast with these must be placed the large number who have such a high regard for law and authority, that when they received notice of their delinquencies in not sending their children to school for the required time in the year, they immediately yielded a willing obedience to its provisions. Many of the children who were thus drawn from the streets and placed in the schools have been found hard to control, and many times they have demoralized the rooms in which they were placed. This presents the necessity of providing for this class of children in separate schools where special provision can be made for their teaching, for their bodily care and proper preparation for contact with others in a schoolroom. The Constitution of Illinois says that the State shall provide for the proper training and education of all its children. The public schools should be regarded as a department of the government to properly prepare the children for citizenship. As a public tax is levied upon every dollar of property for this purpose, it would seem reasonable to demand that every child should receive at public expense an elementary education and training that would fit him for citizenship, provided, his parents or guardians do not make proper provision for his education in other institutions of learning. While there has been a controversy over some of the special provisions of the law relating to the language in which the children should be instructed, and the supervision of private schools, there has been no controversy that has been brought to the Board of Education. From the first action of enforcing the law, the Attendance Officers were instructed to notify the parents or guardians whose children did not attend school, that they must go to school somewhere for the time indicated in the statute, which was sixteen weeks. At no time has there been any demand made that the children should attend the public schools when the parents expressed a wish to have them attend a private school. The Common Council of Chicago wisely passed an ordinance prohibiting the employment of children under fourteen years of age. A special officer was detailed during the year to visit the factories and notify the employers that no child under fourteen years of age should be employed unless they had a special permit from the Superintendent of the Compulsory Department. Most employers readily complied with the requirements of the Child Labor Law, and have steadily refused to employ any children who should attend school. Deceptions are practiced and it is still believed by those who have investigated this subject, that there are many that work in factories in various parts of the city who are under fourteen years of age.

The statistics of the Police Court, the County Jail and Bridewell, show a large number of children who annually become violators of the law, and are placed under arrest. They are then supported at public expense in a building built by public taxes, and cared for and watched by paid officers. These children have become criminals, and a charge upon the city or county by somebody's neglect. The Board of Education has not been authorized to care for this class of children. Nobody cared for them until they became violators of the law, and enemies to good society. Provision should be made at once for the detention and support of neglected children, and they should receive a training and instruction that will lead them to habits of cleanliness, order, submission to authority, and a useful life. It is believed that a new compulsory law will be enacted, which will require children to attend school until they are at least thirteen years of age and for all the time that the schools are in session, that will provide for the proper enforcement of a penalty for willful neglect on the part of parents or guardians to give their children an education, and that will also provide for the care, maintenance and education of neglected and wayward children.

IMPORTANT CHANGES.

In September, 1891, James F. Claflin, principal of the English High and Manual Training School, was unable to resume his work owing to serious illness, which proved fatal. His death occurred October 1, 1891. Albert R. Robinson, former principal of the Dore School was elected to succeed Mr. Claflin.

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Dimock, Supervisor of Drawing, was granted a leave of absence in April, 1891, on account of ill health. She had wrought a great work, which she was obliged to commit to others. She died September 24, 1891. Miss Josephine C.

Locke, formerly Supervisor of Drawing in the schools of St. Louis and later in the Cook County Normal School, who had temporarily filled Mrs. Dimock's place, was appointed her successor.

The high schools had been under the special supervision of Dr. John C. Burroughs since September, 1890. Having reached the age of seventy-four years, and having lived an intensely busy, active life, his strength began to fail. With characteristic tenacity of purpose he did not surrender his work until the shadow of death rested upon him. He died April 21, 1892.

Mr. Augustus F. Nightingale, one of the assistant superintendents, and for many years principal of the Lake View High School, was assigned to the supervision of the high schools in May, 1892.

Mr. Alfred Kirk, who had been a principal in the Chicago schools for twenty-four years, was elected assistant superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Burroughs.

Mr. George Howland's successful career of twenty-three years in the high school gave him an intimate acquaintance with a majority of the teachers, many of whom had been his pupils. He was promoted to the superintendency of the schools of Chicago, because his scholarly attainments, his ability as a teacher, his efficient management of the high school and his general knowledge of educational systems pre-eminently fitted him for the position. During his eleven years' service, many improvements in matters of instruction and discipline have been effected. His high ideals have made the teachers progressive, and have secured to the children the benefits of wise, thoughtful instruction.

After thirty-four years of continuous labor in the education of the youth of this great city, Mr. Howland retired from active service Sept. 1, 1891. The public press of Chicago, the educational journals of the country, the principals' and teachers' associations, published merited tributes of praise for his great work as teacher and superintendent.

Mr. Edward C. Delano, for many years first assistant superintendent, was appointed acting superintendent. Under his judicious direction the schools were opened in September, 1891. The numerous transfers and changes were promptly effected. So thoroughly conversant was he with the varied duties of the office, and so fully honored and trusted by the Board and by his associates that the administration remained practically unchanged.

I began my duties as superintendent on the first Monday in December, 1891. My relations to the Chicago schools, first as a pupil from 1846 to 1858, then as principal of the Franklin School from 1858 to 1869, and since then as County Superintendent for eighteen years, have made me familiar with the history of their growth, the scope of their work, their supervision, and their general business management.

In closing this report, I desire to express my full appreciation of the united and cordial support of all the assistant superintendents. They have faithfully and efficiently labored to make the schools in their respective districts accomplish the greatest possible good for the children.

I am conscious of the magnitude of the trust which the members of the Board of Education have committed to my care, and am grateful for their confidence and support.

It is my purpose to direct and guard every interest of the schools of the city to the best of my ability, and to administer the duties of the office impartially and justly.

Superintendent of Schools.

IN MEMORIAM.

"O Death, what art thou ! Antitype of nature's marvels,
The seed and dormant chrysalis bursting into energy and glory."

JOHN CURTIS BURROUGHS, D. D., LL.D.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools, died April 23, 1892.

Dr. Burroughs graduated at Yale College in 1842, and the Hamilton, N. Y. Theological Seminary in 1846. He came to Chicago in 1852 to become the pastor of the First Baptist Church. He became president of the Chicago University in 1856, when it was organized, and held that position until 1875. He was appointed a member of the Board of Education of Chicago in 1880, and was elected an assistant superintendent of schools in 1883, which position he held until April 21, 1892, when, in the maturity of years, he ceased to work in our midst.

Forty years of constant faithful service in religious and secular instruction were given to the young of this great city. The prime years of his life were devoted to the founding and developing of the Chicago University. No personal sacrifice for its maintenance was too great, no labor to make it a success was too heavy. No insurmountable obstacle to the final permanent establishment of his great enterprise was ever presented to his mind. His faith was heroic. The permanent re-organization of the Chicago University was practically accomplished before his death.

As a superintendent he was considerate and helpful, critical yet just, quick to appreciate and commend any system or method of instruction which was based upon recognized educational principles. In his personal relations with the teachers, he was trusted as a friend, consulted as a wise counselor, was tender and charitable to those who appealed to his sympathy.

MRS. ELIZABETH F. DIMOCK.

Supervisor of Drawing, died September 24, 1891.

“She graduated from the Westfield, Mass., State Normal School, then taught three years in the Sandwich Islands. Upon her return she entered the Boston Normal Art School, where she prepared herself to be a teacher of drawing in public schools. She was elected supervisor of drawing in the Chicago Schools in July, 1877. For fourteen years she gave herself to the work with unwavering, untiring devotion, sparing neither time nor strength. Earnest and enthusiastic herself she endeavored to impress her own spirit upon teachers and pupils, aiding them both by instruction and example. Her success, as seen in the work of the Chicago schools, was known and cheerfully recognized by teachers of drawing, both East and West. Clear in her convictions, firm in her purpose, and true in every fiber of her being, Mrs. Dimock has given her thought, her strength, her life, to the cause of education in this city, and long and kindly will she be remembered."

JAMES F. CLAFLIN.

Principal of the English High and Manual Training School, died October 1, 1891.

He graduated at Amherst College in 1859, and taught in New England two years. He responded to the call of President Lincoln for volunteers, and joined the 5th Massachusetts Regiment. After the war he came to Illinois, and was a member of the Legislature in 1874 and 1875. In 1876 he became a teacher in the Chicago high schools, where he continued until elected Principal of the English High and Manual Training School, which he organized in September, 1890.

Mr. Claflin had strong convictions, and was persistent in maintaining them. Clearly perceiving what was to be done, he did thoroughly what he undertook. He was an organizer with high ideas.

He tenaciously worked to an end. As a writer and speaker he was exact and positive. Conscious of an incurable disease, he worked one year with intense interest to make the Manual Training School a success. His hopes were realized.

"We have two lives;
The soul of man is like the rolling world,
One-half in day, the other dipt in night;
The one has music and the flying cloud,
The other, silence and the wakeful stars."

Every year that passes leaves us a memory of some who have finished their work here. Their names are enrolled upon these pages in remembrance of their services for the children whom they instructed. The truth taught shall abide forever, though the teacher may pass away and be forgotten.

BRIEF EARLY HISTORY
OF THE
CHICAGO SCHOOL SYSTEM.

Fort Dearborn was located by the United States in 1804 at the Chicago River and Michigan Avenue. The first school taught in Chicago was opened in the fall of 1816 by a discharged soldier in a room in a log house located near the Fort. In 1820, it is reported that there was a school taught in Fort Dearborn by a sergeant of the army. In 1829, Chas. H. Beaubien taught the children of the fort and settlement in a family school. In 1830, Stephen Forbes commenced a school near Randolph Street and Michigan Avenue in a room in a log house which had previously been used by the sutler of the Fort. In the spring of 1832-33, John Watkins taught a school on the north bank of the river, east of Clark Street, and afterward on the West Side at the forks of the river, Lake Street and the River. In the fall of 1833, Eliza Chappel, afterward the wife of Rev. Jeremiah Porter, opened a school for young children. In 1834, Mr. G. T. Sproat assisted by Miss Sarah L. Warren taught an "English and Classical School for Boys" in the Baptist church on South Water Street, near Franklin Street. Any school became a public school by reporting the enrollment and attendance, which being certified by certain school officers, entitled the school to receive a portion of public money, which was the income from interest on money realized by the sale in October, 1833, of the sixteenth section of land granted by the General Government to sustain schools. The amount of money thus obtained was very small, and the schools were sustained principally by subscription. Miss Chappel's primary school became very popular, and was moved into rooms furnished by the First Presbyterian Church on the west side of Clark near Lake Street. Two assistants were employed, and girls were taught in the advanced branches. The three schools, Mr. Watkins' on the North Side, Mr. Sproat's and Miss Chappel's on the South Side, received public money and were required to give free instruction to all indigent children or orphans.

*The statements made in this report have been obtained from a historical sketch of the Chicago schools prepared in 1879 by Mr. Shepherd Johnson, Clerk of the Board of Education.

Chicago was incorporated as a city March 4th, 1837; the charter provided for the management of the schools by a Board of Inspectors, to be appointed by the Common Council, hence our city system of schools has been in existence fifty-five years. The reports for the quarter ending Nov. 1, 1837, show the attendance at the various schools then in session, to be as follows:

Dist. 1, Geo. C. Collins, South Side.....	113	pupils enrolled.
" 2 James McClellan, " "	107	" "

The first step toward uniformity of text books to be used in the schools was taken in December, 1840, when Worcester's Primer, Parley's First, Second and Third Books of History and Elementary Pictorial Speller were adopted. In addition there were used Worcester's Readers and Dictionary, National Arithmetic, Frost's Elements of Grammar, Greenleaf's National Arithmetic, Child's Arithmetic, Woodbridge's School Geography, Parley's Geography and Bailey's Algebra.

In 1840, the city was organized into four Districts. Districts No. 1 and No. 2 were on the South Side, District No. 3 was on the West Side, District No. 4 was on the North Side of the river. The only school building owned by the city in 1842 was a two story wooden building located on the school fund block bounded by Madison, Monroe, Dearborn and State Streets, which is described in a report made by the School Inspectors to the Council, March 30, 1845, after the opening of the new building, as follows: "As it is known to the Council, the only school house or school room belonging to the city was in the First Ward, and this was so old and dilapidated that it was recently sold by the Trustees for the sum of $40.00, and the purchaser has no occasion to congratulate himself on account of his bargain." In 1845, the Dearborn School building was erected on Madison street opposite McVicker's Theater. It was 60x80 feet, two stories high. Only the first story was needed. Hon. Augustus Garrett, Mayor of the city, recommended in his inaugural address in 1845 that the "Big School House" be either sold or converted into an insane asylum, and that a building more suitable to the wants of the city be provided. One year after the opening of the building there were enrolled 543 pupils. Mr. Austin D. Sturtevant who had been in the employ of the city since October, 1840, was the first principal. In 1846 he was transferred to the school in District No. 3, located on the north side of Monroe Street west of Canal Street. In the following year a new brick building was erected on the corner of Ohio and LaSalle streets, known as school No. 4 (Kinzie School). In 1847, School No. 3

SCAMMON SCHOOL—1ST FLOOR.

SCAMMON SCHOOL—2d FLOOR.

(Old Scammon) located on Madison street near Union street was completed and occupied. In January, 1850, the old Jones School, northwest corner Clark and Harrison streets was completed and occupied. The salaries of male teachers was advanced from $400 to $500 per annum and female teachers from $200 to $250 per annum in 1845.

For elevation of old Scammon School see page 24.

Music was taught by a special teacher as early as 1842, and lessons were given twice a week. The Board of School Inspectors voted in 1850 that the sessions of the schools be held five days in each week instead of five and a half days, and that the half day on Saturday be devoted to a Teachers' Institute.

School No. 5, the Franklin, corner Division and Sedgwick Streets, and No. 6, the Washington, corner Indiana and Sangamon Streets were completed and opened in January, 1852.

In 1852 there were six school houses, twenty-nine teachers, an enrollment of 2404 pupils and sustained at a cost of $10,704.04 for the year. In 1892 there were 230 school houses, 3,300 teachers, enrollment of 157,743 pupils and the total expenditure for the year was $4,562,840.86.

The following table gives some interesting statistics showing the growth of the city and of the schools:

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

NORTH-WEST DIVISION HIGH SCHOOL.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE
ON BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

Your Committee on Buildings and Grounds respectfully submits their report for the school year 1891-92, as follows:

To provide suitable accommodations for an increase in enrollment of over ten thousand pupils each year, requiring the purchase of new sites in different sections of the city and the erection of at least twelve new buildings each year, at a cost, for new sites and buildings, of between $800,000 and $900,000, and the further need of providing additional accommodations in sections of the city which are rapidly filling up, and where new buildings had been erected in the past which were supposed at that time to have been sufficient to meet all the wants of such sections for several years to come, is one of the most serious questions which confronts the Board and this Committee; and the fact before them that, until the present year, the appropriations made by the City Council for this purpose have been far from adequate to meet the necessary demands for increased school facilities.

The Board of Education in presenting their estimates to the City Council from year to year bases the same on the requirements for the year for which the appropriation is made. Inasmuch, however, as the tax made for a certain year is not available till about one year after the appropriation is made, during which time the expense of maintaining the schools, independent of providing additional accommodations, is constantly and rapidly increasing, any deficiency arising from increase in cost of maintenance must necessarily be taken from the amount allotted for the purchase of sites and the erection of new buildings of that year; for instance, the proceeds from the appropriation for the fiscal year 1891, which was $5,013,435.86, was not available till after the first of January, 1892, and therefore the money received from this appropriation has been used to pay the expenditures for the year 1892. In their estimates for the year 1892 the Committee asked for the sum of $200,000 for the purchase of school sites, and $1,765,000 for the erection of new buildings. There has been, however, available during the year 1892 the appropriation for 1891, that for the year 1892, at the close of the school year even, not having yet been levied against the property of the city. As a consequence, in dividing up the tax levy for the support of schools available during the year 1892, there was apportioned to the Committee on Buildings and grounds the sum of $150,000 for the purchase of school sites, and the sum of $1,000,000 for the erection of school buildings, which covers the period from January 1, 1892, to December 31st, 1892. The Committee, therefore, has been obliged to keep a close watch on the expenditures for these purposes, and order the erection of buildings so as not to overdraw the amount apportioned. The report of the work done covers that portion of the year 1891 extending from July, 1891, to December 31, 1891, and of the year 1892 from January to July. Thus, while upon examination of the estimates submitted from year to year, certain amounts are found to have been inserted for the purchase of school sites, and for the erection of new buildings, the question arises why there are still such demands for increased accommodations. This deficiency becomes more apparent when the City Council, in order to keep down the total tax levy for the city to as low a limit as possible, cuts off largely from the estimates of the Board of Education. In the case of the appropriation for 1892, the amount asked for by the Board of Education was $5,996,084.50, which the City Council cut down to $5,450,000. In this instance the total amount cut down ($446,084.51) will be taken largely, if not entirely, from the estimates for sites and buildings.

The work of the Committee has been very largely increased since annexation, for, in addition to the demands for increased accommodations in the annexed portions, which have been very great, owing to the rapid growth of new centers which were either being opened up at the time of annexation, or of new subdivisions made since that time, the demands have also been very great and urgent, almost irrepressible, for changes and improvements on the buildings which were either occupied or near completion at the time of annexation, that they be fitted with all the more recent appliances and conveniences which have been furnished by the Board in the recently erected new buildings.

At no other time in the history of Chicago has so much been accomplished in the direction of furnishing additional accommodations for the relief of pressing demands by reason of the rapid growth of the city, than during the past year, owing to the fact that the City Council, realizing the urgent needs in this direction, have been more liberal during the past year or two in the appropriations made for the support of schools. The buildings now constructed are considered by the Committee as models of school architecture, especially in the matter of heat, light and ventilation, three of the most important items to be considered in caring for the youth of the city during their school life.

The work accomplished during the year in this direction is shown in the following statements. In making up these statements the city has been subdivided into four districts, to wit—the North Division, the South Division and southwest portion of the city south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal; the West Division of the city north of Kinzie street; and the West Division of the city south of Kinzie street; by which it will be seen that the money expended has been very fairly distributed throughout the city.

SCHOOL SITES.

The sum of $82,021.00 has been expended during the past year for the purchase of school sites, which has been distributed in the different sections of the city as follows:

In the North Division of the City.—

Northwest corner of Evanston Avenue and Melrose Street, 116x125 feet, for the sum of $18,000. This lot was purchased for the relief of the Lake View School No. 1, now known as the "Louis Nettelhorst School," thereby affording with the old site a site of sufficient dimensions for the erection of a new structure, which will very materially relieve the needs of this rapidly growing section of the city. A new building is now in course of erection on this lot.

In the South Division of the City.—

On Kimbark Avenue, west front, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Streets, 250x175 feet, for the sum of $32,025.00.

One Hundred and Eighth Place, near Wentworth Avenue, 275x124.95 feet. Of the 275 feet of this site, 200 feet were donated, and the remaining 75 feet were purchased for the sum of $4,950.00. A building is now in course of erection on this lot.

Emerald Avenue, east front, south of Seventy-ninth Street, 150x144.4 feet. This lot was purchased prior to annexation, on which there was still due the sum of $1,100, which, together with accrued interest, amounted to $1,166, which has been paid during the year.

West Division, North of Kinzie Street.—

An addition to the Irving Park school lot, St. Charles Avenue, between Everett and Douglas Streets, 50x174 feet, for the sum of $1,000. This addition now gives a lot 250x174 feet.

Southeast corner of Garden and Sheridan Avenues (Avondale), 297x123 feet, for the sum of $6,100.

West Division, South of Kinzie street.—

Harrison Street, south front, between Sacramento Avenue and Francisco Street, 225x154 feet, for the sum of $13,500, and taxes and assessments levied in 1891. The purchase of this site affords an opportunity to relieve the Calhoun School district. A building is in course of erection on this lot, to be known as the "John Ericsson school."

Northeast corner of Lincoln and Moore Streets, 222x124 feet, for the sum of $8,880. The purchase of this site affords an opportunity to relieve the Cooper and the Froebel Schools.

Initiatory steps have also been taken for the purchase of school sites as follows:

In the North Division.—

At the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell to the city for use as a school site, ground located within the limits bounded on the north by Belle Plaine Avenue, south by Addison Street, east by Robey Street, and west by Western Avenue, to provide accommodations for pupils residing west of Chicago and Northwestern Railroad tracks, at Ravenswood, Lake View; and at the meeting of June 8th, the Board, upon the recommendation of the Committee, accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, a proposal to sell for this purpose 225 feet by a depth of 124.16 feet, for the sum of $4,450, located on the southwest corner of Belle Plaine Avenue and Leavitt Street. No action had been taken by the City Council on this recommendation at the close of the school year.

In the South Division, south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

At the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell ground for use as a school site, within the limits bounded on the north by Seventy-eighth Street, on the south by Eighty-first Street, on the east by Woodlawn Avenue, and on the west by Madison Avenue, and at the meeting of July 6th, the Board accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, a proposal to sell, for the sum of $4,400, a site located on the northwest corner of Nutt Avenue and Eightieth Street, having a frontage of 161.43 feet. This matter still awaits the concurrence of the City Council.

At the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell, for use as a school site, ground located within the limits bounded on the north by Sixty-third Street, on the south by Sixty-seventh Street, on the east by Morgan Street, and on the west by Loomis Street. No satisfactory proposals having been submitted, authority was granted at the meetings of June 8th and June 22d to re-advertise. No action had been taken by the Board in this matter at the close of the year. This territory is directly west of the present Kershaw School.

At the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell for use as a school site ground within the limits bounded on the north by Fifty-fifth Street, on the south by Fifty-eighth Street, on the east by Halsted Street, and on the west by Center Avenue, for the relief of the Beale School district. The Beale School building, a new sixteen room building, was opened in March, and was filled to its utmost capacity within a month or two of its opening, necessitating the re-rental of several rented rooms which had been given up. At the meeting of June 8th, the Board, upon the recommendation of the Committee, accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, a proposition to sell, for the sum of $9,000, 232x124.67 feet located on Morgan Street, west front, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets, the Board to assume taxes for 1892, and special assessment for macadamizing. The matter was still in the hands of the City Council at the close of the year.

At the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell ground for use as a school site within the limits bounded on the north by Fifty-ninth Street, on the south by Sixty-third Street, on the east by Central Park Avenue, and on the west by West Forty-fourth Street, to relieve a growing settlement northwest of Chicago Lawn. No satisfactory proposals having been received in response to this advertisement, authority was granted to re-advertise at the meetings of June 8th and of June 22d.

At the meeting of May 31st, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell ground for use as a school site within the limits bounded on the north by Sixty-fifth Street, on the south by Sixty-eighth Street, on the east by Cottage Grove Avenue, and on the west by Vincennes Avenue, to relieve the Woodlawn School district on the west. The proposals received not being satisfactory, authority was granted to re-advertise, at this time extending the limit on the north to Sixty-third Street; and at the meeting of July 6th, the Board accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, a proposal to sell, for the sum of $7,567, 124x122 feet, located on the southwest corner of St. Lawrence Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street.

At the meeting of May 31st, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell, for use as a school site, ground west of the Oakwood Cemetery, and at the meeting of June 22d the Board accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, an offer to sell, for the sum of $6,611.76, 161.7x125 feet, located on the north-east corner of Ellis Avenue and Seventy-second Street, being south of Oakwoods Cemetery, and between the Illinois Central and the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad tracks.

In the North Division.—

At the meeting of May 25th authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell ground for a school site within the limits bounded on the north by North Avenue, south by Weage Avenue, east by Sheridan Avenue, and west by Central Park Avenue, to relieve the district south of North Avenue and west of Humboldt Park; and at the meeting of June 22d a proposal was accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, to sell to the city for this purpose, for the sum of $7,900, 269.6 feet by a depth of 123.9, situated on the northwest corner of Sheridan and Weage Avenues. No action had been taken by the City Council on the purchase of this site at the close of the school year.

In the West Division, north of Kinzie Street.—

At the meeting of May 31st, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell for use as a school site ground located between North Avenue on the north, Grant Avenue on the south, Hamlin Avenue on the east, and West Forty-first Street on the west. No satisfactory proposals having been received in response to this advertisement, authority was granted to receive new proposals at the meeting of June 22d. No further action had been taken toward the purchase of a site in this vicinity at the close of the year.

At the meeting of May 25th, the Committee was granted authority to obtain a proposition from owners of property lying north of the Andersen School lot, extending to Division Street, with a view to the erection of an additional building for the relief of this very much crowded district. Efforts have been repeatedly made to secure another site to the east of the Andersen School, but the territory is filled up to such an extent that it was found impossible to secure relief in this way, consequently the only resource seemed to be enlargement of the present site. At the meeting of May 31st, the Board accepted, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, a proposal to sell 121.8 feet, fronting north on Division Street, by a depth of 111.4 feet to the alley on the north side of the Andersen

School lot for the sum of $16,000, this amount including a two story frame building on one of the lots, which will be of little value for removal. By the closing of the alley between the Andersen School site and this property, and the opening of an alley on the east side thereof, there will be sufficient room for the erection of a twelve room addition, which, it is hoped, will furnish the necessary relief for this district.

In the West Division, south of Kinzie Street.—

For many years the Skinner, Scammon, Dore, Polk Street, Goodrich and other schools in this section of the city have been very much crowded, and repeated attempts, for several years past, have been made to secure ground to relieve this pressure, either south or east of the Skinner school, but owing to the thickly settled condition of all this section, and consequent high price, when obliged to deal with several owners, the Board has failed to obtain a satisfactory site. A new effort was made, during the latter part of the year, and at the meeting of May 25th, authority was granted to advertise for proposals to sell ground located within the limits bounded on the north by Harrison Street, on the south by Taylor Street, on the east by Morgan Street, and on the west by Center Avenue. At the meeting of June 8th the Committee recommended the purchase, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, for the sum of $38,800, of 192 feet front on Good Street, and on Better Street, by a depth of 100 feet on Sholto Street. This recommendation not proving satisfactory to the Board, the Committee was, at this meeting, instructed to re-advertise, the price asked appearing to be too high and exorbitant. At a subsequent meeting, held June 22d, the Committee recommended the purchase, subject to the concurrence of the City Council, for the sum of $28,950, of the east 168 feet of the above described property, having three street fronts, Good, Better and Sholto Streets. No action had been taken toward this purchase by the City Council at the close of the school year.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS COMPLETED AND OPENED.

The following new buildings reported by the Committee last year as having been in various stages of progress, have been opened during the year:

NORTH DIVISION :

The Knickerbocker School Building, located on the northwest corner of Jay Street and Belden Avenue, was opened in March. It is a fifteen room building, with assembly hall, size 135x87.4 feet; the total amount of contracts, exclusive of seating, but including heating and ventilation, was $68,798.28. The building has a seating capacity for 820 pupils. The average membership of the school for May was 632.

SOUTH DIVISION, including all territory south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal :

The Beale School Building, located on Sangamon Street, between Sixtieth and Sixty-first Streets, was opened in March. It is a fifteen room building, with assembly hall, size 135.2x87.6 feet. The total amount of contracts, exclusive of seating, but including heating and ventilation, was $70,329.08. It has a seating capacity for 890 pupils, and had a membership in May of 1128, this being 238 in excess of the seating capacity of the building, consequently it was found necessary to resort to double divisions, and also re-rent several rooms which were given up when the building was opened.

The new Champlin School Building, located corner of Princeton Avenue and Sixty-second Street, took the place of the old Champlin school building, on the same site, which was torn down. It is a fourteen room building, with assembly hall, size 155.5x74.8 feet. The total amount of contracts, exclusive of seating, but including heating and ventilation, was $58,487.65. It is heated by steam furnished by the boilers of the Englewood High School building, and has a seating capacity for 733 pupils.

An Addition to the Sherwood School Building, located corner of southeast corner of Princeton Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, was opened in May. The building contains eleven rooms, with assembly hall, size 132x70 feet. The total cost of the building, exclusive of seating, was $50,828.13. It has a seating capacity of 677.

WEST DIVISION, north of Kinzie Street :

The Addition to the Oakley School Building, now known as the Ellen Mitchell School, located on Ohio Street, between Leavitt Street and Oakley Avenue, was opened for the reception of pupils January, 1892. It is a sixteen room building, with assembly hall, size 137.10x80.6 feet, and has a seating capacity for 864 pupils. The total cost of this building, including steam heating and ventilating, exclusive of seating, was $71,909.63.

The Bancroft School Building, located on Maplewood Avenue, between North and Waubansia Avenues, was opened for the reception of pupils in February. It is a fifteen room building, with assembly hall 135x87.4 feet, and has a seating capacity for 810 pupils, and at the time of its opening relieved the Humboldt and Wicker Park schools, but before the close of the month of May it was overcrowded, showing at the end of the month an average membership of 801 pupils. The cost of the building, exclusive of seating, was $70,839.28.

The Addition to the Carpenter School Building, located corner of Center Avenue and Huron Street, was opened in September, 1891. It is a ten room building, with assembly hall, built in front of the old Carpenter School building, facing Center Avenue, size 186x52 feet, and accommodates 540 pupils. Total cost $61,186.91, together with an expenditure of $14,442.73 for changes in the old building rendered necessary by the erection of the addition. Notwithstanding the additional accommodations provided by this addition, the building is practically full, the average membership for May being 1350, with a total seating capacity of 1414 pupils.

IN THE WEST DIVISION, south of Kinzie Street :

The Addition to the Foster School Building, located on corner of O'Brien and Union Streets, was opened for the reception of pupils in September, 1891. It is a twelve room building, three stories, having a frontage on Union Street of 168.4 feet by a depth of 50.8 feet, and accommodates 654 pupils. Total cost of building $52,926.77. This school is again full, notwithstanding the additional accommodations furnished, the average membership for May being 1236, against a total seating capacity for 1273.

The John Crerar School Building, located corner of Campbell Avenue and Taylor Street, was opened March, 1892. It is a fifteen room building, with an assembly hall, 135x87.4 feet, and furnishes accommodations for 810 pupils, and cost $70,164.59, relieving the King and Brainard Schools, which had been for some time past very much overcrowded, necessitating in the case of the Brainard School the renting of numerous Branches. This school had within two months after its opening a membership of 641 pupils, and is rapidly filling up.

There was also opened, early in the fall of 1891, a three story building for the workshops of the English High and Manual Training School. This building was erected on the rear of the old High School lot, on Monroe street, east of Halsted street, size 56x100 feet, at a cost, for the building itself, of about $25,000. It has been fitted up with the necessary machinery and tools. The first floor is used by classes in foundry work and blacksmithing, and will furnish instruction for 156 pupils; the second floor is used as a machine shop and for wood turning, and instruction can be given to 75 pupils in each department; the third floor is fitted up for carpentry and woodworking, and instruction can be given on this floor to about 150 pupils. The number enrolled in this school during the past year was 209. This number has increased since September, 1892, to 296.

BUILDINGS READY FOR OCCUPANCY SEPTEMBER, 1892.

The following school buildings were practically completed at the close of the school year, and will be ready for occupancy at the opening of the schools, September next:

The North-West Division High School Building, located on the northeast corner of Davis Street and Potomac Avenue, is a two story building, having a frontage of 254 feet 10 inches on Davis Street, and 124 feet on Potomac Avenue, with sixteen class rooms, besides four recitation rooms, a large room for gymnasium, also a large lecture room, room for classes in drawing and for chemical laboratory, and an assembly hall on the third floor, facing Potomac Avenue, about 83x116 feet. The cost of this building has been about $110,000.

The Everett School Building, located on the southeast corner of Yorktown and Thirty-fourth Streets, is a three story building, with sixteen class rooms and assembly hall, 140x87 feet, and cost about $70,000.

The Addition to the Forestville School Building, located corner of Forty-fifth Street and St. Lawrence Avenue, is a three story building, with three class rooms on each of the first and second floors, and one class room and assembly hall on the third floor. The addition cost $50,500; it will seat 450 pupils.

The William C. Goudy School Building, located on the corner of Winthrop Avenue and north Fifty-ninth Street (Argyle Park), is an eight room building, with assembly hall, so planned, however, that, when the district demands it, an eight room addition can be put up. The amount of contracts for the eight rooms is $45,026.50. It accommodates 435 pupils.

The Greenwood Avenue School Building, located on the southeast corner of Greenwood Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, will be, when completed, a sixteen room building, with assembly hall. In order to provide accommodations in this district without interfering with the pupils attending this school, there was erected that portion of the building fronting the alley or on east end of the lot, containing six rooms, furnishing accommodations for about 400 pupils, it being the intention at the close of the school year to take down the old building and erect the balance of the new building. The total amount of contracts for the entire building is $65,500.

BUILDINGS IN COURSE OF ERECTION.

Contracts have been awarded during the year for the following described buildings, which are in various stages of progress:

SOUTH DIVISION, south of the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

Corner of Washtenaw Avenue and Geneva Street. Contracts were awarded August 1, 1891, for the erection of a fifteen room building, with assembly hall, on the site, corner of Washtenaw Avenue and Geneva Street, to be known as the "Burroughs School," to take the place of the present Brighton Park school building, which is not suitably located for the accommodation of the district, being directly adjacent to the railroad tracks, on the eastern limits thereof. The total amount of contracts awarded for the erection of this building is $68,565.47.

One Hundred and Eighth Place near Wentworth Avenue. Contracts were awarded August 19, 1891, for the erection of a sixteen room school building, with assembly hall, on One Hundred and Eighth Place near Wentworth Avenue, to be known as the "Van Vlissingen School." The total amount of contracts awarded for this building is $69,701.60.

Addition to the Holden School Building. Contracts were awarded September 30, 1891, for an additional building on the Holden School lot, corner of Deering and Thirty-first Streets. The addition will contain seventeen class rooms and an assembly hall. The contracts awarded for the erection of this building amount to $75,231.86. Owing to the location of the old building and the shape of the lot, this addition is of peculiar construction, a portion of it being but one class room and corridor in depth. The erection of this building has been long needed for the relief of this district.

Corner of One Hundred and Fourth and Charles Streets. Contracts were awarded March 16, 1891, for the erection of a sixteen room building, with assembly hall, corner of One Hundred and Fourth and Charles Streets (Washington Heights). The amount of contracts awarded for the erection of this building is $60,765.64. There was a building in course of erection on this lot prior to annexation, which was destroyed by fire a very short time before annexation, and upon which there was considerable insurance. During the whole time since annexation the pupils of this district have been accommodated in rented buildings, which are very poorly adapted for school use. This building has been named since the close of the school year the "Alice L. Barnard School," after Miss Barnard, who had been connected with the schools since 1846, and for many years past as Principal of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds. 103

Jones School, having resigned such position about one year since.

Corner of Wood and Seventieth Streets. Contracts were awarded for the erection of an eight room building, corner of Wood and Seventieth Streets (Englewood-on-the-Hill), May 11, 1891. The amount of contracts awarded for this building is $37,122.13. The building has been named the "Hermann Raster School."

IN THE WEST DIVISION, south of Kinzie Street:

Harrison Street near Sacramento Avenue. Contracts were awarded September 30, 1891, for the erection of a sixteen room building, with assembly hall, on Harrison Street, near Sacramento Avenue, to be known as the "John Ericsson School." The total amount of contracts awarded at the close of the year was $62,408.10. This building is located south of the Calhoun School, which has been very much crowded for some years past, necessitating the rental of Branches which were very poorly adapted for school purposes.

Steps were also taken before the close of the year for the erection of the following buildings, contracts for which have since been awarded:

IN NORTH DIVISION:

Corner Evanston Avenue and School Street (Lake View).

Corner Grace and Sheldon Streets (Lake View).

Addition to Sulzer Street School building (Ravenswood).

Four room building corner Leavitt Street and Belle Plaine Avenue.

IN SOUTH DIVISION:

Corner Stanwood Avenue and State Street.

Addition to Kershaw School building, on Winter, near Sixty-fourth Street.

Addition to J. N. Thorp School building, corner Eighty-ninth Street and Superior Avenue.

Corner of Fifty-fifth Street and Blanchard Avenue.

Corner of Eighty-third and Houston Streets.

IN WEST DIVISION, north of Kinzie Street:

Linden Avenue, between Evergreen and Diversey Avenues (Maplewood).

IN WEST DIVISION, south of Kinzie Street:

Two three-room additions to the Clarke School building.

Corner of Lincoln and Moore Streets.

RENTED BUILDINGS AND ROOMS.

Notwithstanding the increased number of buildings erected during the year, still the rapid growth of the city, mainly in the outlying districts, has been so great that there is a constant demand for additional accommodations, which can only be provided by renting the best buildings or rooms which can be secured in sections demanding such relief. Very few of the rented buildings and rooms are suited for school use, but the only alternative is to secure such accommodations as can be obtained or keep the children out of school.

Committee on Buildings and Grounds. 105

The following statement shows the location, monthly rental, etc., of the buildings and rooms rented at the time of the preparation of this report, November, 1892:

UNOCCUPIED SCHOOL SITES.

The city held at the close of the year the title, for the use of schools, to the following named school sites, which are still unoccupied:

Northwest corner of Wabash Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, 198.99x193 feet. This site is a portion of the original purchase for the Moseley School, and was leased by the city for a term of years. The lease expired some years ago.

Warren Avenue, between Rockwell and Fall Streets, 120x125 feet. This lot came into possession of the city through annexation. There was a frame building on this lot at the time of annexation occupied by the Cicero Primary School. The building has since been sold, and the lot is now vacant.

Leavitt Street, between Coblentz and Lubeck Streets, 216x100 feet. This site was purchased for the relief of the Langland School district, and at the time of the erection of the new building on the Langland School lot, the old frame building was removed to this lot. Upon the completion of the new building on the Langland School lot the old frame building was sold, and the lot has since remained vacant.

REPAIRS AND PERMANENT IMPROVEMENTS ON OLD BUILDINGS.

In addition to the furnishing of new sites and the erection of new buildings, which has occupied the attention of the Committee very largely during the past year, as will be seen in this report, the repairs and necessary improvements to be made from time to time on the old buildings is a very important branch of the labors of this Committee, when it is considered that there are 230 buildings to look after, besides rooms in 84 rented buildings.

The following is a general summary of the more important repairs and improvements, which have been made, under the supervision of the Business Manager, during the past school year, up to July 1, 1892; contracts having been made for the more extensive repairs and improvements, the balance of the work having been done by carpenters, painters and other regularly appointed employes of the Board. These repairs and improvements do not include those made during the summer vacation of 1892:

Repairs to Roofs: Repairs have been made to the slate, tin and metal work of seventy-nine buildings; new gravel roofs have been laid on four buildings; the gravel roofs of thirty-seven buildings have been repaired; one building has been reshingled, and shingle roofs of nineteen buildings were repaired; the skylights of two buildings have been replaced; the bell tower on the old portion of the Taylor school building has been removed, and the roof repaired; and the roof of the Webster School (Hegewisch) has been strengthened.

Cement Floors and Sidewalks: New cement floors have been laid in twenty buildings, and repaired in ten buildings; cement sidewalks were put down on the north side of the Lincoln School lot upon the widening of Kemper place; and a portion of the cement sidewalk on the Cottage Grove Avenue frontage of the Oakland School lot, rendered necessary by the widening of Cottage Grove Avenue, was relaid, and a cement curb was put in.

Painting, Calcimining, etc.: The exterior brick, stone, wood and metal work of twenty-nine buildings has been painted; also the tin and metal work of seven buildings; the interior woodwork of twenty buildings was either painted, grained or varnished, or refinished with hard oil, together with portions of thirty-four buildings; the basement woodwork of thirty buildings was painted; dados were painted around the basement walls of forty-nine buildings; the outhouses of eleven buildings were painted, as well as the picket fences of twenty-five buildings; one hundred buildings were calcimined throughout, together with portions of six buildings; and the basement rooms of ninety-two buildings were white-washed.

stands, 72 snow shovels, 144 foot stools, 12 portable blackboards, 36 easels for arithmetic charts, 36 easels for reading charts, 96 step ladders, 180 clay boards, 228 clay boxes, 72 slate marker frames, 120 window poles, 2½ gross of blackboard erasers, 32 cases for storing models, 56 cases for offices in the schools. Drawing tables have been furnished for twenty buildings; new seats and desks have been provided for thirty-four buildings, seats and desks in seven buildings have been repaired, and changed in thirty-two buildings.

Flag Poles: Flag poles have been provided for four schools.

The repairs and improvements on the steam heating and ventilating apparatus, and also sewerage and gas fitting, have been made under the direction of the Chief Engineer, which have been as follows:

Steam Heating and Ventilation: New plants for heating and ventilating the Wells and Garfield School buildings have been put in during the past year. In both instances there are two buildings on the lot, the buildings on the Garfield School lot having been previously heated by furnaces; the old Wells School building was heated by steam, direct and indirect radiation, old style, which had never proved satisfactory, and the new Wells School building was heated by Ruttan Furnaces. The old heating apparatus in both buildings was removed, and replaced by the Waters' Semi-Gravity System of Steam Heating, and a mechanical ventilating apparatus. New boiler and coal houses were constructed between the two buildings, in each instance; also new smoke stacks, and the electric valve service for securing a uniform temperature in all the class rooms of the buildings was applied to the indirect heating surface. This system has heretofore been applied to both the indirect and direct radiators, but inasmuch as the direct radiating coils in the class rooms are used for heating the rooms early in the morning only, and, except in extremely cold weather, is shut off before 9 A. M., it was deemed advisable to omit the apparatus from the radiating surface in the class rooms.

The steam heating and ventilating apparatus in the Lake View High School building had never proved satisfactory, owing to the fact that the apparatus was not properly constructed, and the blast fan was too small to furnish a sufficient amount of air for the satisfactory ventilation of the building. The plant has been thoroughly overhauled during the past year, the boilers were reset, a blast fan and engine of greater capacity were substituted for the old ones, a new receiving tank was furnished in connection with the Waters' Semi-Gravity System of Steam Heating, the old steam traps were removed, new galvanized iron ventilating flues were substituted for the old ones, direct radiating surfaces were placed in the class rooms, and the electric valve service for the regulation of the temperature was placed on the indirect heating surface, thus placing the apparatus in this building in a satisfactory condition.

The steam heating apparatus at the Rose Hill School building, put in prior to annexation, failing to produce satisfactory results, the old apparatus was removed, and a new plant has been put in, using wall coils and indirect stacks taken out of the Champlin School building at the time it was torn down to make way for the new building, and new galvanized iron ventilating flues were put in.

The new laboratory fitted up in one of the basement rooms of the West Division High School building could not be satisfactorily ventilated in connection with the ventilating apparatus in the building, consequently it was found necessary to construct a ventilating chamber in the adjoining room, in which a separate exhaust fan was placed, by which means good ventilation is secured for both the new and old laboratories.

The new addition to the Skinner School building has been heated by both direct and indirect radiation, and ventilated by means of galvanized iron pipes connected with the main ventilating shafts in adjoining class rooms.

The five additional rooms finished in the second story of the Hedges School building have been heated by direct and indirect radiation, the indirect radiators being encased in galvanized iron boxes, and an additional boiler was put in.

The engine used for the old Manual Training School building was removed to the forge room, new shafting, pulleys, and belting were furnished to transmit power to the machinery in the new building, and new ventilating fans and galvanized iron piping were furnished for the ventilation of the forges in the blacksmith shop.

The passage way connecting the two buildings on the Brown School lot was heated by steam coils, and changes were made in ventilating pipes so as to suitably ventilate the same.

New galvanized iron pipes were connected with the various rooms at the Hoerner School building, in order to secure better ventilation of the building.

The steam heating apparatus in the Burr, Brighton, Dore, Hammond, Horace Mann, Skinner and Tilden School buildings was overhauled and put in thorough repair; for the more important part of this work on these buildings, and requiring extensive changes, detailed specifications were prepared, and the work was done by contract.

The boilers in all the school buildings were examined by the City Boiler Inspector, and repairs were made on the boilers of fourteen of the school buildings, in accordance with recommendations made by him as a result of such examination.

The question of smoke prevention has engaged the attention of the Committee during the past year as in previous years; new devices have been tried from time to time at the expense of the patentee, in order that the merits of the same might be demonstrated, and in cases where they did not prove successful they were removed by the patentee at his own expense, and the furnaces restored to their original condition. From the apparently favorable results obtained by the use of one of the devices (the Ritter and Burke) the Committee has deemed it advisable to have it applied to the boilers of seven of the new buildings now in course of erection.

Fusible plugs and pop safety valves have been attached to all the boilers in the various school buildings, in order to conform to the city ordinance relative to safety appliances for steam boilers.

The exposed steam and water pipe, and receiving tanks in all the new buildings were covered with a non-conducting sectional covering, and the fire brick and linings of furnaces under the boilers at the various school buildings were put in thorough repair.

The furnaces in fifteen buildings, to wit: The Hyde Park High, Jefferson High, Brennan, Calumet, Gallistel, Healy, Irving Park, Keith, King, Kinzie, Langland, Pearson Street, Polk Street, Vedder Street and Ward, were found, at the close of the year 1891, to be in a very dilapidated condition, and they were either replaced by new furnaces, or the old ones were repaired, where possible, so as to serve for another year. New linings were placed, where necessary, in the furnaces and stoves in other buildings. Two furnaces formerly in the Park Manor School building were removed, put in thorough repair, and used for heating the halls of the Oak Ridge and J. L. Marsh School buildings.

An unusually large number of buildings and rooms were rented during the year for the relief of overcrowded schools, which were heated by stoves and fitted up with plumbing fixtures, where water and sewer connections were available.

The old pan closets of the Brighton, Hendricks, Rogers and Wicker Park School buildings, which had been condemned by the Department of Health, were removed and replaced by siphon tank closets. New slate urinals were substituted for the old lead lined fixtures in ten school buildings.

A new outside water closet was constructed for the boys attending the old Wells School building, fitted up with slate urinals, and the old urinal troughs in the closet of the new building were taken out and replaced by slate urinals. A slop sink was placed on each floor of both buildings.

The closet rooms of the two buildings on the Garfield School lot were also remodeled and refitted, and a slop sink was placed on each floor in each building.

New laboratories were fitted up in the English High and Manual Training School, the Hyde Park High School, and the Auburn Park School building for the Calumet High School. The plumbing of the ladies' lavatory at the Lake View High School was disconnected, and new connections were made with the iron sewerage in the basement. Owing to frequent complaints as to the unsanitary condition of the Smead Dry Closet System at the Emerald Avenue, and Harvard School buildings, the closets were removed from the basement of these buildings, and new outside closets were constructed.

Much complaint had been made of the unsanitary condition of the new Brown School building, and in order to remove all cause of complaint the entire system was overhauled and the sub-basement was ventilated by the construction of ventiducts connecting with the exhaust fan. The sewerage of the Logan School building, which at the time of the erection of the building was temporarily connected through a private sewer, was connected with the main sewer on Oakley Avenue. New sewerage has been introduced into the Oak Ridge School building, and two basement rooms have been fitted up, in which drinking fountains were provided. The Principal's and Teachers' lavatories at the Von Humboldt School building were removed from the boys' and girls' playrooms, and placed under stair landings in the basement.

New scales for the weighing of coal delivered to the schools were put in at several buildings, and sewer connections were made with the pits under the scales.

The outside closet vaults of many school buildings, in cases where found necessary, were thoroughly cleansed and disinfected.

Gas connections were made and gas fixtures supplied for the accommodation of Evening Schools in all cases where gas mains had been laid.

Your Committee desires to call attention to the various elevations and floor plans of school buildings of the city, to be found in this report, commencing with the old Scammon School building, located on West Madison Street, east of Halsted Street, followed by designs of buildings erected since then, which show the advance made in school architecture, as well as in internal arrangement and appliances looking not only to the comfort of the pupils attending, but also to their health in the matter of light and ventilation.

The Scammon School building, the elevation of which will be found facing the report of the Superintendent of Schools, on page 24, and floor plan on page 77, was erected in 1846, size 50 x 72 feet. The frame building shown on the cut, in the rear of the original building, is a four room frame building erected in 1862, which has been removed to the Monroe Street front, and is now used as a supply room, the second building in the rear is the old High School building, a stone building erected in 1856. Owing to the change of residents in this section of the city, the eastern portion of the district being largely occupied by manufacturing establishments, the ground occupied by the Scammon School was leased in 1881 for business purposes, the school building was torn down, and the entire Madison Street frontage is now covered by an eight story business block. It was the third permanent school building erected in the city, the Dearborn, 60 x 80 feet, having been erected in 1844, and the Kinzie, 45 x 70 feet, in 1845. The cost of the Dearborn is given as $7,523.42, and of the Kinzie $4,047. These buildings, as well as the Jones, erected in 1849, the Franklin, erected in 1850, and the Washington, also erected in 1850, were on the same general plan in interior arrangement as the Scammon, differing somewhat in exterior appearance, especially the Jones. When provision was made for the erection of the Franklin and Washington School buildings, the City Council limited the cost of these buildings to $4,000 each.

All the school buildings at that time were heated by stoves and the only means of securing ventilation was by either raising or lowering the windows. The seats and desks furnished were double pine seats and desks.

The next building erected after the Washington was the original High School building, located on Monroe Street east of Halsted Street, back of the Scammon School, followed by the Moseley, the Brown, the Foster and the Ogden, which were three story buildings, four rooms on each floor, except on the upper floor, where two rooms were thrown into one, furnishing an Assembly Hall. The peculiarity in the construction of these buildings was that the stairways had a landing midway between each floor, which rendered it necessary, when a Principal desired to go to a room on the opposite side of the building, to go down midway to the floor below, and then pass up to the floor above. These buildings are all still in use, with the exception of the Ogden, which was destroyed by the Great Fire of 1871, but the stairways have been remodeled, and they are now heated by steam. The Assembly Halls have been divided in order to furnish two additional school rooms. The first building heated by steam was the Brown School building, but the general use of steam was not adopted till 1860, when the Skinner School building was erected.

These were followed by two four story buildings, the Newberry and the Skinner, with six rooms on a floor, except that on the fourth floor the two rear rooms were thrown into one for use as an Assembly Hall. For some years after the erection of the Skinner School there were erected four story buildings, such as the Wells, Dore and Washington, and three story buildings, four rooms to the floor, such as the King.

Strong objections having been made to the four story buildings, on account of their height, necessitating the climbing of long flights of stairs, claimed to be very injurious both to teacher and pupils, and the three story (12 room) buildings, not furnishing sufficient accommodation in crowded districts, the Committee on Buildings and Grounds turned their attention to the enlargement of the former three story buildings, and finally settled upon five rooms to the floor, or fifteen room buildings, thus furnishing accommodations for 915 pupils, each room being furnished with 63 seats and desks. The first building erected from these plans was the Throop, in the year 1878. The Committee, in their report, say:

"The Throop is a three story building of an entirely new design, having five school rooms on each floor, so arranged as to admit the principal light at the left of the pupil; it is heated by steam, in part by direct and in part by indirect radiation. Attached to the heating apparatus is a pressure fan which furnishes sufficient fresh air to each room, the foul air escaping through two large ventilating shafts."

It will be noticed that all of the school buildings erected to this date, and for several years after, were severely plain in their exterior appearance.

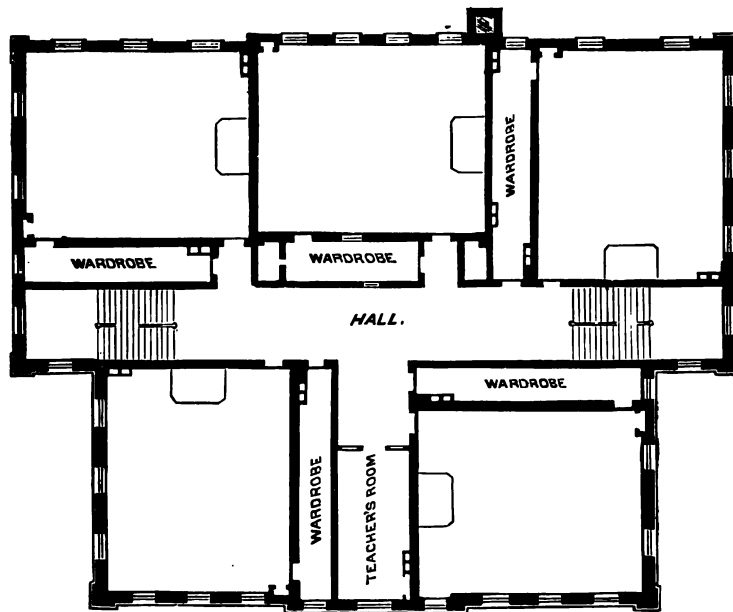

The pressure for school accommodations being on the constant increase, the next step toward meeting this demand, although to a somewhat limited extent, was by increasing the size of the buildings from fifteen to eighteen rooms, or buildings three stories in height, six rooms to the floor, two rooms on the upper floor being thrown into one so as to furnish an assembly hall, but so constructed that, in districts where the pressure becomes so great as to demand it, the hall can be divided so as to make two full sized class rooms. The first building of this class constructed was the Harrison, located on Twenty-third Place, west of Wentworth Avenue, and at the present time most of the buildings now being erected in populous districts, or in districts where there is a prospective large increase of population, are of this pattern. While the interior arrangement remains about the same as the Harrison School building, some modifications are made in the exterior appearance.

Facing the title page of this report will be found an elevation of the Louis Nettelhorst School, now in course of erection on Evanston Avenue, between School and Melrose Streets. This building has all the more recent appliances for heating and ventilation, and is fitted with the electric valve service which regulates automatically the temperature of the rooms throughout the building. The school rooms are so arranged that the light falls over the left shoulder of the pupil. Upon examination of the basement plan of the building it will be seen how indirect radiation is furnished to several rooms, and the various floor plans show the entrance of the heated air, and the exit of the foul air. In addition to the indirect radiators in the hot blast room in the basement, by means of which a supply of heated fresh air is furnished each room of the building, there is a certain amount of direct radiation in each school room, which is seldom used at any other time than in the morning before the pupils assemble.

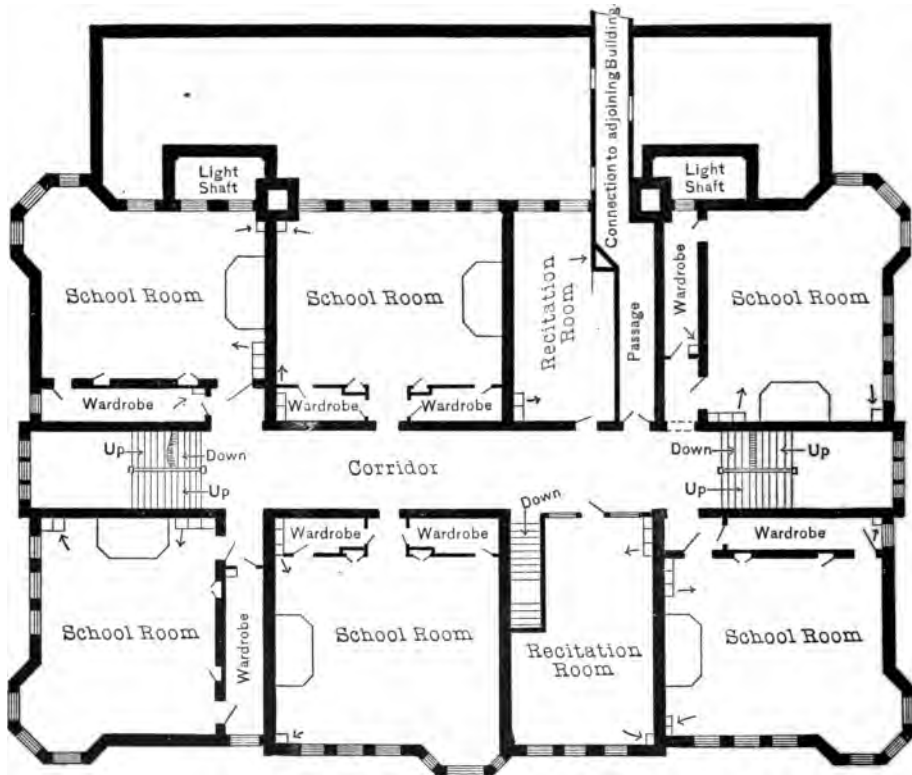

Facing the report of the Committee will be found an elevation of the Northwest Division High School building, which was completed during the year, and was opened for the reception of pupils in September, 1892. The building is two stories in height, having a frontage of 252 feet on Davis Street by a depth of 121 feet on Potomac Avenue, (a short distance east of Humboldt Park), with an assembly hall, 81.8x118.2 feet on the Potomac Avenue front, constructed in the attic. The method of heating is the same as in the Louis Nettelhorst, and there is provided a large gymnasium, well fitted, together with chemical, biological and physical laboratories, a large lecture room, and also a room fitted up especially for classes in drawing. The floor plans show the general interior arrangement of the building, size of rooms, etc. It is considered a model building for High School purposes.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON THE
ENGLISH HIGH AND MANUAL TRAIN-ING SCHOOL.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

Your Committee on the English High and Manual Training School begs leave to submit the following report of the Principal of the School as a part of their report:

To the Committee on High and English Manual Training School:

GENTLEMEN: Allow me to submit the following items in regard to the work of the school year 1891-2.

Owing to the fact that the new shops were not completed till near the end of November, 1891, the work of the school was considerably delayed, and in consequence, is by no means so complete as it would otherwise have been.

In detail, the work accomplished is about as follows:

FIRST YEAR—6,500 exercises in joint work and wood turning.

1,350 exercises in pattern making.

150 exercises in cabinet work.

2 cabinet cases.

1 secretary.

1 pattern of stationary engine complete.

1 pattern of wood working lathe.

Committee on Manual Training School. 165

SECOND YEAR—500 castings in iron, brass and soft metal.

1060 forging exercises.

250 lathe tools.

1 iron gate.

1 lamp stand.

THIRD YEAR—100 exercises in filing and chipping.

210 exercises in lathe work.

1 steam pump.

In addition to the above there were many individual exercises assigned and accomplished that cannot be enumerated here. Many of them were for use in and around the school, others for use or ornament at home. In the drawing department about 7,000 mechanical and freehand drawings were made.

The school has nearly doubled in attendance over the year 1890-1. The promise for an increase next year is excellent. About 190 from the present graduating classes in the grammar schools are reported as expecting to enter the school in September. If only 150 enter it will be all that the present academic department can well accommodate. The matter of better accommodations for this part of the school is one that will soon need attention, and the peculiar needs of a school of this character should be carefully consulted before any plans are adopted.

For the next year's work more lathes are needed in both the wood and iron working departments. A milling machine will be found of great use in the machine shop.

In the wood working department the planes are of a very inferior kind. It seems important that a boy's first introduction to tools should be, like his introduction to companions, to the very best possible. In view of this, I recommend that the common wooden planes now in use be discarded and that iron planes like the Bailey be substituted for them. This can be done at comparatively small cost.

More and better room is needed in the drawing department. This can be obtained by utilizing the attic of the shop, where there is room for at least three large, light, and well ventilated rooms.

It is very important that the course of study be modified and made to harmonize with the course now in use in the other high schools in the city. It also seems necessary that some one of the modern languages be added to the course, that boys who desire may prepare for the higher technical schools where a knowledge of French or German is one of the requirements for admission.

The changes in the course are more definitely outlined in a proposed course which I have submitted for your approval.

After visiting a number of schools where manual training is made a specialty, and where an experience of several years has been had, I am not ashamed of the progress that this, the youngest child of our educational system, has made.

Thanking you and the Board of Education for your kindness and consideration, and hoping for your further good will, I am

Very respectfully yours,

ALBERT R. ROBINSON,

Principal.

In the matter of various changes suggested in the above report, the Committee will take them under advisement and report to the Board of Education at the proper time.

In reviewing the work of the past year we find that the School has gained a permanent place among the educational institutions of our city. Its value cannot be estimated in money, but by its influence on the young men who, in its shops and recitation rooms, will learn the true meaning of the motto "To know and to do."

It would not seem fitting to close this report without mentioning the loss the school sustained in the death, last October, of Principal James F. Claflin. To his untiring efforts in carrying out the recommendations of the Committee is due much of the success of the school. His heart and mind were bound up in it, and to it he devoted his days' toil and his nights' thought.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE
ON
DRAWING AND PENMANSHIP

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

The history of Educational Art in the Chicago Public Schools for the past year is a record of which we need not be ashamed, notwithstanding the smiles which have gone around when barrels of clay have been called for and the cry of "hot cakes" when emery flour is proposed for the cleaning of steel instruments. Your Committee has the satisfaction of knowing that the Department is beginning to compare favorably with the same department in the schools of St Paul and Washington, and that expenses are proportionately less than in those cities.

Your Chairman has, within the last twelve months, made a study of Educational Art in the cities of St. Paul, Minneapolis, Washington, Philadelphia, Paris (France), Florence (Italy), Athens (Greece), and finds the following conditions:

First.—The schools of St. Paul are allowed more kinds of material and the teachers are trained for the work in their splendid Normal School before entering upon the duties of teachers; consequently the work is more uniform in that city and the results are more apparent.

Second.—The Superintendent in Washington bases all of his work squarely on the laws of scientific teaching and encourages the use of clay in higher grades so that the work is uniform throughout the lower grades, and there are more numerous and better expressions of historic interest in clay in the upper grades than can be found in the Chicago Schools.

Third.—In Paris the children have much better advantages in “purely artistic” training than children in Chicago. There are more Special Teachers of Drawing; indeed the “ordinary teacher” or regular teacher does not have that branch to attend to. There is an art room in the school to which each class repairs for art instruction under the supervision of its own regular teacher. This does away with complaints from teachers who do not understand drawing.

Fourth.—In Athens, where the excavated “sacred way” stands full of statuary, and where at the foot of Acropolis, children climb over the huge fragments of master-pieces, it is needless to say that art is better appreciated than in America. It does one's heart good to go into the largest school there and see Ionic pillars on every hand and casts of the faces of old heroes in every room. But the actual work of the children in Paris and in Athens is not of the same scientific or pedagogical value as is the work of the children in the St. Paul or the Washington Schools, or in those schools in Chicago where the art spirit is really rooted.

Fifth.—The Boston movement of beginning at the foundation by making the school rooms more attractive through tinting the walls and placing copies of the best pictures and a few casts of noted sculpture in the school rooms, has reached Chicago, but only to a limited extent. Mr. Revell of our Board has made a forward movement in asking that the architecture of the school houses be of a better order; Mr. Barnes has succeeded in having two rooms in the Webster School tinted; and Miss Ellen Starr of the Hull House has presented pictures of a high character to two or three schools and has done much in the way of instructing teachers and the community at large in the "Gospel of Art."

"For all modern communities," says Mr. Horsfall of Manchester, England, "the decision as to whether art shall be used in education is of much importance. It is in fact, a decision as to whether the mass of people shall be barbarian or civilized."

Committee on Drawing and Penmanship. 171

The teachers of Chicago, more and more, recognize this fact and during the past year there have been many expressions on their part of interest in the work, and of regret that during their own school days the philosophy of Educational Art was not made of consequence. Many of them have agreed that they are ready to help in a movement toward an Evening School in which they may be able to enjoy careful and systematic training in drawing. In this facility Chicago is behind St. Paul. In the latter city, there is an Evening High School in the heart of the town where 700 students assemble every night. There were, last December, 200 of the St. Paul teachers studying in the various departments of this school, many of them receiving training for their daily work.

Mr. Powell of the Washington Schools has made so careful and powerful an analysis of the philosophy underlying our system of drawing that he would be a good writer who should venture to do better. What he says of the Washington Schools is the exact experience of the Chicago Schools. He says:

"It was determined that the drawing could not be taught well from flat copies. It was known, though we had not been able previous to the time to which reference is made to direct the work of drawing in the light of our best knowledge, that only by a liberal and an intelligent use of objects by which children could be made acquainted with natural and art forms, could drawing be successfully taught. It became more evident every day as the work of teaching drawing was studied, that representation even, the simplest product sought by the study, could proceed only from an accurate knowledge of the facts of forms, for however appearances of forms might differ from the facts, the underlying causes of the differences could be understood only by him who had been acquainted with the facts."

Furthermore, when contemplating the purposes of the study higher than those of simple representation, it was believed that as a healthy, productive imagination could be cultivated only after there had been acquired a store of facts well understood, so artistic work could be done by him only, who could fashion his art out of materials taken from his own conscious storehouse of facts whose relations were understood.

It was agreed, therefore, that if the child is to be taught drawing at all, no matter for what purpose, first of all the teacher must see that he has abundant opportunity to learn from facts, and that, as in the study of spoken or written language, he must be made to know before an attempt is made to teach him expression. An important step forward in the teaching of drawing was made when this almost axiomatic truth was recognized.

It was believed also that facts could not be learned from representation or from dictation, or from both.

Children learn to know forms only imperfectly by seeing them and handling them; they get correct, permanent conceptions of forms best by analyzing them and by putting them together, and by making them of different sizes and of different materials, and under different circumstances, and for different of form. Concepts are built.

Form study and drawing are sequential steps in the order named for beginners, form study being the first, drawing being the second. Form study is a pre-requisite to drawing. Manual training is one of two co-ordinate parts of form study. Manual training, then, and drawing are as inseparable as are ideas and words in the study of verbal expression.

Drawing was selected as the branch of study along whose lines of work related to them might be found those employments that would afford all the training desired to make the manual course of the school symmetrical and a unified entirety.

Apart from the strictly practical sense-cultivation, much may be done by this work to assist the æsthetic and the moral growth of the child.

The study of graceful forms and harmonious coloring will stimulate a love for the beautiful and appropriate which will leave its impression on all the work of his hand. In his home, in his dress, and in the products of handicraft, good taste will guide his choice of form and color, and thus render the world brighter and pleasanter both for himself and for those about him. The appreciation of the beautiful and of the pure and chaste go hand in hand, and will keep the mind and heart ever with higher and nobler things.

From the kindergarten through the high school the pupil should be kept in constant intelligent association with the object-world about him, that he may acquire knowledge of its structure and the laws governing its appearance. Without this knowledge of his environment he is but a stranger wandering in a strange land. By the proper study of geometric solids and planes, and of forms related to these, he will acquire, through the natural avenues of acquisition, sight and touch, a comprehensive and classified knowledge of all forms.

His glance will no longer be dazed by a bewildering maze of edges and planes, for in everything he will see but the combination and repetition of certain type forms. To the little child the form-world is as a tangled jungle, and must ever remain a perplexity until he has been led to a classification of its variations.

In this work, so necessary to correct, profitable instruction in drawing, is found an opportunity for the training of the eye, hand and judgment simultaneously. In these employments, the making of geometric forms, of natural forms allied to them, and of art forms developed from them, and of common objects based upon them, is in part the work for which we have been seeking. What an amount of profitable seeing is here made possible ! What employments for the acquirement of deftness and reliability in the use of the hands and fingers ! What delightful exercises for the development of judgment and taste !

The general purposes of the course of exercises developed are :

First.—Storing the mind with true conceptions of forms and colors, and developing the ability to acquire new concepts.

Second.—Developing the ability to select from masses of materials that which is appropriate for specified or desired purposes.

Third.—Directing the attention to the essential elements of the beautiful in nature and in art, neglecting in such attention the accidental, thus developing the beginning of an artistic standard.

Fourth.—Training the hand to use, shape and arrange materials with neatness, accuracy and taste, that the learner may express artistically, i. e., with truth and beauty.

Fifth.—Teaching the use of tools adapted to the age and strength of the child, and to the character of materials employed.

Your Committee owes an acknowledgment to Messrs. Prang & Company for the concessions they have made in constantly revising the work and adapting their system to the most progressive and scientific principles of education, and also for their generosity in furnishing expensive manuals to the teachers.

Your Committee, after consultation with the Supervisor of Drawing, who had advised with Mr. W. K. Sullivan, agreed to omit giving the annual Sullivan Prize for drawing this year, that the accumulated sum might be bestowed as a prize to the school which should show the best work in each grade during the Columbian year.

In the matter of penmanship your Committee has seen fit to make no change. Specimens of writing have been collected from nearly all the schools, and they seemed, on an average, better than specimens from other cities, although the system practised in Washington is truer to the best philosophy, and perhaps affords better results in the first grade.

Your Committee would acknowledge the ability with which the Supervisor of Drawing and her corps of assistants have handled such an enormous field of work; and we herewith append a report furnished by the Supervisor, summarizing the changes made during the past year.

Committee on Drawing.

MISS MARY E. BURT,

Chairman Committee on Drawing and Penmanship:

In accordance with your request I have the honor to submit the following report concerning the Drawing Department:

The rapid transition in public sentiment during the past five years has affected no branch of education more than that of Form Study and Drawing. These terms very inadequately cover the scope or character of the work done in their name.

Drawing as originally introduced into our Public Schools was based upon European precedents and was rightly named "Industrial Drawing." It had for its object development in mechanical skill and acquisition in technical power. It was intended as a bread and butter study to prepare young people for work in the artistic industries.

But the ideas of South Kensington Schools have never rooted themselves in the West. Undoubtedly our social condition has had much to do with this. The feeling in America has been very strong that training for citizenship or the cultivation of the general intelligence of the individual must precede all specialization.

History is proving every day that specialization with pupils which is not founded on a previous general education produces simply living automata.

These considerations have lifted the study of drawing from a technical to an educational basis, to a comprehensive course with direct reference to the development of the child, and touching all branches of school instruction.

Specialists have been called upon to modify their one sided technical demands, to stand squarely on the philosophy of Froebel and to make Form Study and Drawing pre-eminently a means for the free expression of the child.

The conditions existing in the Chicago Public Schools are so very different from what they are in Academic or Special Schools, that the methods employed, the ideals sought for cannot be weighed or measured by the same standard.

The time given to the subjects rarely exceeds an hour and thirty minutes per week, while the average age of the children is between seven and fifteen years.

The work must be done in classes ranging from thirty to sixty pupils, and by a regular teacher whose own education has been largely limited to text books and teachers' institutes. Under such circumstances the entire movement is a phenomenal one in the records of civilization.

Its only apology for continued existence is the undeniable fact that it ministers to the art instinct of the child, or to that region of his emotional nature, which the longer recognized studies do not touch.

"The World of Art," says Froebel, "is the visible revelation and expression of the invisible man." If we will brush aside the misunderstanding and the fetichism that has attached itself to their work, we cannot fail to see that under the term Art, lies hidden all the constructive and formative energy of a people, that latent power which when externalized is the measure of man's conscious movement into the likeness of his Creator, into dominion over nature, and conquest of his lower self. Applied to the simple elementary work done in the school room it seems a far fetched word, yet the art or poetic instinct, is the child's true nature and secret life; it is the eternal side of him that yearns after the good and beautiful—the well-spring from which his intellectual and physical life is nourished.

Because these are qualities essential to a nation's welfare and to the development of a humane humanity, it is the province of the Public School to preserve and nourish them.

It cannot be done through making the child a receptacle for ready made knowledge. He must be given opportunity to work off his own crudeness, to express himself from within, first by concrete and later by more abstract symbols.

Thus the study of things, in their color and light and shade, their reproduction in clay, paper, paste-board and wood has been closely associated with delineation by line. Nothing from a psychological standpoint, has been more revolutionary than the introduction of this elementary manual training, through the handling of materials and the making of objects. It has changed the attitude of mind in both children and teachers; it has thrown them upon the exercise of their own judgment and intelligence.

The work in the Chicago Public Schools has been a steady upward movement. The excellent foundation laid by my predecessor, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Dimock, has made it easy and delightful to go forward.

Departures last year consisted mainly:

First.—In cutting down line drawing and technical language in the lower grades.

Second.—In extending the study of color previously introduced into the Third Grade, through all the grades of fifty-six schools. This year we hope to include all the main buildings.

Third.—In beginning a definite observation of light and shade with practice in artistic handling from the Third Grade upward.

Fourth.—In encouraging sight drawing for the purpose of promoting free expression in connection with the other studies.

Fifth.—In an effort to connect the geography, history and literature of a country through the study of its architecture and historic ornament.

I do most earnestly deprecate the idea of exact uniformity in methods and results, such as a cast iron course of instruction would entail. There must be organization and system enough to show something tangible for the time spent, but where Teachers and Principals possess sufficient enlightenment and intelligence to make departures, I gladly give them all the assistance in my power. There must be freedom in the work, but not license.

I am sure the Department is doing beautiful work, which while far from perfect, is in a vigorous, wholesome condition.

The feeling on the part of the Teachers and Principals is excellent. To them, to the Assistant Supervisor, and to the Special Teachers who have made possible the present attainment, I extend my hearty thanks for their unfailing courtesy and co-operation.

Very respectfully,

JOSEPHINE C. LOCKE,

Supervisor of Drawing.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON GERMAN.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

Your Committee on German begs to submit the following report for the year ending June 24th, 1892.

The study of German in our schools, we are pleased to find, from our own observation, as well as through the reports from the Supervisor of German, and many of the Superintendents and Principals, is no longer an experiment, nor is it continued merely out of deference to our fellow citizens of German birth, but it has become, by a demand for it, though an optional study, a part of the regular curriculum of over half of the pupils in the grades and schools wherein German is taught.

We find also from data furnished us by the Supervisor of German, that less than half of the pupils studying German are of German parentage.

and that out of an enrollment of 39,462 pupils at the beginning of the school year only 624 have dropped the study during the year.

The facts here stated justify us in the assertion that while the field of education in our schools steadily widens, the study of at least one foreign language in our primary and grammar grades is insisted upon as a part of that broader education. Surely, the children in America should be as well treated in this respect as are the children of other countries.

That the German language is the one eminently adapted to take this place will not be disputed. The advocates of a practical common school education will readily admit that, from a utilitarian standpoint, a knowledge of the German language is to the tradesman and mechanic, in very many instances, of great value, while to the student it is the Alma Mater of literature and the sciences.

Those opposed to the study of German in our public schools make use of the argument, that the time devoted to this study detracts from the study of the elementary branches, and one of your special committees but recently discussed the advisability of omitting the German in the third and fourth grades, and commence it instead in the fifth. Investigation however, demonstrated the fact that the very pupils studying German were far in advance (in the primary as well as grammar grades) in the line of promotion of those not participating in the study. An old German adage says:

"Was Daenschen nicht lernt, lernt Dans nimmermehr."

A language study begun at the age of nine will rest upon a firmer basis than one begun at twelve.

The Committee on German has had occasion to notice, and we feel it our duty to report it here, that the Principals of some of the schools rather discourage than encourage the study of German in their respective schools. There may still be a lurking idea in the minds of some Principals and teachers that the study of German in our schools carries with it a political significance, and is there merely by sufferance. They cannot be too quickly disabused of this, and we would respectfully recommend to call the attention of Principals to the rules of the Board, in order to obtain a free expression from the parents regarding their wishes as to the study of German by their children.

We respectfully refer to the report and statistical tables accompanying this, prepared by Dr G. A. Zimmerman, showing the steady growth of this department of our schools.

We make due acknowledgment to Dr. Zimmerman, to his able assistant, Miss Mary I. Purer, and to the German teachers, for the satisfactory manner in which they have discharged their duties.

Respectfully submitted,

EDWARD ROSE.

EDWARD G. HALLE.

MARY E. BURT.

REPORT OF SUPERVISOR OF GERMAN.

EDWARD ROSE, ESQ.,

Chairman Committee on German:

DEAR SIR: I herewith submit the accompanying statements, showing the condition of the study during the year ending June 24, 1892.

Table No. 1 is a statement in detail of the grades in which German was taught in each school, the total average daily membership in these grades, the number of pupils studying German, and the per cent. of the total average daily membership of these pupils.

Table No. 2 shows the total enrollment of pupils studying German, their nativity and parentage. As will be seen by a perusal of this statement, of a total enrollment of 39,462 pupils, 17,512 were of German parentage, 11,484 of Anglo-American parentage. The remainder, 10,466, belonged to various other nationalities.

Table No. 3 embraces the following data: Number of teachers employed, number of classes, average number of pupils to a class, number of pupils who received permits to discontinue the study.

The growth of this department is shown in detail in Table No 4.

The study has been introduced in the following schools during the past year: Amerson, Bancroft, Beale, Cornell, Doran, Graham, Greenwood Avenue, John Crerar, Knickerbocker, Madison Avenue, Phil Sheridan, Pullman (Lake) and Sulzer Street.

Respectfully submitted,

GUSTAV A. ZIMMERMANN,

Supervisor of German.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE
ON SPECIAL FUNDS.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago.

There is intrusted to the Committee on Special Funds a general supervision over all Special Funds under the control of the Board; the purchase from such Funds of reference books, apparatus, or text-books needed, the purchase and distribution of Foster Medals or Diplomas, and such other medals or prizes as may be ordered by the Board, also over the discipline, instruction and work of the Deaf Mute Day Schools.

The Special Funds consist of the Moseley Public School Book Fund, the Foster Medal Fund, the Jones Fund, the Newberry Fund, the Jonathan Burr Fund, the Michael Reese Fund, the Holden Fund, the Carpenter Fund, the W. K. Sullivan Fund, the Calhoun Fund, the Hesing German Fund, and the Sheldon Fund.

The conditions under which these several Special

Funds were established are indicated in the following communications from the various donors:

MOSELEY PUBLIC SCHOOL BOOK FUND.

Gentlemen of the Common Council:

During my connection with the Public Schools of the city, I have frequently noted what appears to me to be a serious defect in our School System.

I allude to the want of means to provide for indigent children desirous of attending school. It is often the case that children are sent away from the schools because they have no books, nor any means of getting them. Scores, if not hundreds, are kept out of the schools by this cause alone. There is no provision in the School Ordinance authorizing the use of any of the School Fund to purchase books, and it is perhaps best, in the present state of the Fund, that there should be no such provision. It is, however, very desirable that some way should be provided to supply the need. No child in our city ought to be deprived of the privilege of attending the Public Schools, and thus be permitted to grow up in ignorance, because his parents or guardians are too poor, or too careless of his welfare, to provide the necessary text books.

For the purpose of obviating, to some extent at least, this difficulty, I have placed in the hands of the Mayor a check for one thousand dollars, which I offer as a donation to the city: Provided, the Common Council will pass an ordinance causing the money to be deposited with the Agent of the School Fund to be loaned out as other school money is loaned, but to be kept (with any other donation that may at any time be made to the city for the same purpose), as a separate Fund, the income of which shall be subject to the control of the Board of School Inspectors, to be used in supplying indigent pupils in the Public Schools with books; Provided, however, if at the end of any School Year any of the income of the Fund thus created shall remain unexpended, it may, at the option of the Board, be either added to the principal, or expended in the purchase of books for the Public School Libraries.

Hoping that your honorable body will not hesitate to accept the trust for the purpose for which it is intended,

I remain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
Chicago, December 29, 1855. FLAVEL MOSELEY.

On January 10, 1856, the Common Council passed the following ordinance:

Be It Ordained by the Common Council of the City of Chicago:

SEC. 1. That the donation of One Thousand Dollars made by Flavel Mose-ley for the supply of indigent children in the Public Schools of the City with text books be accepted and denominated the "Moseley Public School Book Fund."

SEC. 2. That the sum of One Thousand Dollars, together with any donations that may hereafter be placed in the hands of the School Agent, and shall constitute a part of the School Fund of the City, shall be loaned upon the same terms and at the same rate of interest as other School Funds are loaned; Provided, that a separate account shall be kept with said Fund and disbursed according to the following provisions, to wit:

The interest accruing upon said Fund (or so much thereof as shall be necessary), shall be annually expended for the purchase of text books for indigent children in attendance upon the Public Schools of the City, under the direction of the Board of School Inspectors, upon whose order only the School Agent shall be authorized to pay out said Fund.

SEC. 3. In case any part of the interest arising from the loan of said Fund be unexpended at the close of any Municipal Year, the same may be added to the principal, or expended in the purchase of books for the libraries of the Public Schools, in the discretion of said Board of School Inspectors; and no other appropriation of said Fund shall ever be made except by order of the Common Council and Board of School Inspectors, and with the written consent of the donor, or donors, or their legal representatives, which consent shall be placed upon file in the City Clerk's office.

This Fund was increased in the year 1867 to $11,000, by the following bequest made by Mr. Moseley, in his last will and testament:

I give and bequeath to my Executors and Trustees hereinafter named, and the survivor, or such one as shall act in the trusts of this will, the sum of Ten Thousand ($10 000) Dollars, upon and for the Special Trust following that is to say, in trust for the City of Chicago, but more especially and exclusively for and to be added to "The Moseley Public School Book Fund," to be placed in the hands of the "School Agent" of said City, or of such other public functionary as my said Executors and Trustees, on consultation with the public and corporate authorities of said City, and acting in concert with them, shall deem best, having in view the safe investment of the Fund, and its productiveness and availability of periodical income for the uses and purposes thereof, in all time to come; said sum is to go and constitute part and parcel of said Public School Book Fund, and is to be kept and used in the manner provided for by an Ordinance of the Mayor and Common Council of said City in relation to the same, passed in January, A. D. 1856, and the receipt for said sum made or to be made to my said Executors and Trustees by the proper officer empowered by the corporate authorities of the said City of Chicago shall be deemed and taken as a sufficient voucher, discharging them from all further duties and responsibilities in respect to this trust.

This bequest was made at a time when there was revenue tax collected by the U. S. Government, which, in this instance, amounted to $600, but the amount of the bequest ($10,000) was invested in ten $1,000 bonds at 94 per cent. thus keeping the Fund intact, consequently the principal of this Fund remains at $11,000.

FOSTER MEDAL FUND.

The following is the communication from Dr. John H. Foster, accompanying his donation of One Thousand Dollars.

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Chicago:

For the encouragement of scholarship and good conduct, and to incite a laudable emulation and application among the scholars of the Public Schools of the City of Chicago, I herewith give to the said City One Thousand Dollars, in trust, to be deposited with the Agent of the School Fund, and his successors in office, should the City deem it expedient, and to constitute a part of said Fund, to be kept by said Agent in a separate and distinct account or fund, and to be loaned out by him at interest, forever. The interest arising from the same to be paid semi-annually, and to be subject to the order of the School Inspectors, or the Board having control of the Public Free Schools of Chicago, to be used by them and the Superintendent of Public Schools of said City in purchasing gold, silver or bronze medals, or diplomas, to be annually or oftener awarded by them to the most deserving scholars in the different departments of the Public Grammar Schools of said City.

JOHN H. FOSTER.

Chicago, February, 1857.

The awards consisted of silver medals to the graduates from the Grammar Schools to the High School, until within the last two years, when the number of Grammar Schools furnishing graduates to the High Schools became so large that the revenue from the Fund, $70 per annum, was far from adequate to supply even one medal to each school furnishing graduates. consequently there has been no other means of utilizing this Fund than by the use of diplomas.

JONES FUND.

The following is the communication from William Jones, accompanying his donation of One Thousand Dollars.

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Chicago, in Common Council Assembled:

Having long felt a deep interest in the Public Schools of our City, and having been for many years identified with their earlier history, I feel a desire to perpetuate that interest and its results in years to come. I therefore ask the acceptance by your Honorable Body of the sum of One Thousand Dollars as a gift in trust, to be deposited with the Agent of the School Fund, and his successors in office, and to constitute a part of said Fund, but to be kept by said Agent in a separate and distinct account or Fund, to be called the Jones Fund, and to be loaned out at interest by him forever, the interest arising from the same to be paid semi-annually, and to be subject to the Board of Education, or the Board having control of the Public Free Schools of Chicago, to be used by them and the Superintendent of Public Schools in said City, in purchasing text books, slates, etc., for indigent children attending the "Jones School," and in furnishing books of reference, maps, globes, and such other apparatus as may be desirable in said School. Should there then be a surplus from the income of said Fund, the said surplus to be appropriated in the furnishing of text books, etc., to indigent pupils in such parts of our city as the Board of Education may designate.

Very respectfully yours,

Chicago, May 4, 1858.

WILLIAM JONES.

NEWBERRY FUND.

The following is the communication from Walter L. Newberry, accompanying his donation of One Thousand Dollars.

Hon. Julian Rumsey, Mayor of Chicago:

Sir:—I beg leave, through you, to present to the City of Chicago the accompanying City Bond for One Thousand Dollars, to be held in trust for the benefit of the Newberry School, the semi-annual interest thereon to be applied, under the direction of the authorities having charge of said School, first, to the purchase of textbooks and stationery for indigent children attending said School, and any surplus thereafter to be used for the purchase of School apparatus, such as maps, globes, etc., and books of reference. And, should these wants of said School be at any time supplied from other sources, the authorities aforesaid are authorized to expend said interest for such purposes beneficial to said School as they may deem proper.

The principal of said bond to be re-invested from time to time as it becomes necessary, if practicable, in bonds of the City of Chicago, the State of Illinois, or of the United States, in the order named. The principal sum to be kept at One Thousand Dollars, by adding accruing interest if necessary and the surplus interest and principal, should there at any time be any, to be continued to be applied in perpetuity as before directed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

Chicago, April 29, 1862.

W. L. NEWBERRY.

JONATHAN BURR FUND.

Jonathan Burr, Esq., in his last Will and Testament, proven in Probate Court, February 25, 1869, after certain specific bequests to relatives and various public institutions, made the following bequests under which the Jonathan Burr Fund is established.

Sixteenth.—I hereby order and direct that all the rest and residue of my property and estate shall be converted into money and cash securities, and be divided into eleven equal parts, to be disposed of as hereinafter specified:

Twenty-first.—To the City of Chicago aforesaid, I give and bequeath one other eleventh part of all the said rest and residue of my property and estate, and to have and to hold the same to the said City and its assigns forever, but in trust, however, to and for the following purposes and uses, namely: In trust, to hold, invest, manage and control the same, and the same from time to time to re-invest, and the annual income thereof to pay over to the Board of Education of said City, to be by said Board expended for the use and benefit of the Public Schools in said City, in procuring, for the use in said Schools, books of reference, maps, charts, illustrative apparatus, and works of taste and art, at the discretion of said Board, and in case the City of Chicago shall fail or neglect at any time to provide the necessary text books and slates for the use of worthy indigent children attending the Public Schools of the City, then the said Board of Education is hereby authorized and directed, at its discretion, to use and expend the whole or any part of said income in supplying and providing such children with the text books and slates necessary for their use.

Twenty-ninth.—It is my will, and I hereby request and direct, that all moneys and funds which I have given and bequeathed to the several societies, corporations and institutions located in the City of Chicago, be, by the respective recipient thereof, invested and kept invested, if the same shall be practicable, in one or more of the following named classes of securities, that is to say, in Bonds of the United States, of the City of Chicago, of the County of Cook, of the State of Illinois, or in notes or bonds of individuals, secured by mortgage or trust deed on unencumbered, first class, improved and productive real estate situated in the City of Chicago.

Among the eleven equal parts in which “all the rest and residue of the estate was divided, as seen in the sixteenth clause, one which constituted the original amount of the Jonathan Burr Fund, was a provision that three-elevenths were to be given to the City for the purpose of providing fuel for the poor. This Fuel Fund amounted in round figures to $38,000. The City however failed to carry out this trust and the matter having been brought before the Courts, a decision was rendered by Judge Gardner to the effect that this Fuel Fund be turned over to the various charitable institutions as the suitable legatees of the will to which were given the remaining eight elevenths.

The Fund now amounts to $32,000.

HOLDEN FUND.

J. L. Pickard, Esq., Secretary of Board of Education:

DEAR SIR:—I wish, through you, to return to the Board of Education my thanks for the unexpected honor they have conferred upon myself by naming the Holden School after me, with the hope that the several members may find satisfaction for their unpaid labors in seeing the work of their hands prosper, and our Schools an honor to them and to our City.

I also inclose One Hundred Dollars, and wish the Secretary to draw on me or mine annually for a like amount for ten years, unless One Thousand Dollars is sooner placed at the disposal of the Board of Education by me.

If deserving and needy children in that School are not otherwise provided with books, then an amount of this Fund not exceeding eight-tenths, may be expended for books for such children as are not able to supply themselves, such books to be marked "Presented by C. N. Holden."

The balance, not less than two-tenths of said Fund, and including all not necessary to expend for books, to be distributed in prizes of four grades, not worth more than five, nor less than two dollars each, in Books or Medals as the Board may decide, to those scholars of four similar grades that make or have, at the end of each school year, the best record for general progress in studies, punctuality of attendance, and deportment. This is to include scholars in all grades of the school. Said prizes to be known as "Holden Prizes."

The money, when on hand, to be kept at interest, and the interest to be added to the Fund.

Respectfully yours,
C. N. HOLDEN.

Chicago, January, 1869.

Three payments of $100 each were made by Mr. Holden on the above donation, and one payment of $50, making a total amount of $350, the last payment having been made in June, 1873. In July, 1871, an account was opened at the State Savings Institution, and remained in that Institution till it closed, in August, 1877, there being to the credit of the Fund at that time $299.26. Upon settlement with the defunct institution the sum of $146.92 was realized, of which amount $100 was invested November 4, 1888, in a four per cent. city bond, and there was to the credit of the Fund at the close of the year, uninvested, the sum of $57.36.

CARPENTER FUND.

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago:

GENTLEMEN:—On the 16th day of June, 1868, I donated to the Board of Education, for the use of the Carpenter School, a City Bond of One Thousand Dollars, suggesting at the time that the interest thereon be appropriated annually for the purchase of text books for the use of teachers and scholars of said school.

As there has arisen some question as to the manner of expenditure of the annual interest thereon, I desire to be more explicit as to the custody of the Fund, and the provisions for its use.

It is my wish that the Fund be in the custody of the School Agent of the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, to be kept by him as a separate and distinct Fund, to be called "The Carpenter Fund." The principal of said Fund to be kept forever at the sum of One Thousand Dollars, by adding accruing interest if necessary to secure such object, and to be re-invested from time to time as may become necessary, if practicable, in the Bonds of the City of Chicago, State of Illinois, or of the United States, in the order named. The annual interest, always excepting so much as may be needed to keep the principal at the original sum of $1,000 to be expended as follows:

In the purchase of text books, slates and stationery for indigent children attending the Carpenter School, and any surplus thereafter to be used for the purchase of school apparatus, such as maps, globes, etc., and books of reference for the use of teachers of said school, as may be needed from time to time, the expenditure of said annual interest to be under the control of the Board of Education of the City of Chicago.

Respectfully submitted,

Chicago, April 1st, 1880.

PHILO CARPENTER.

MICHAEL REESE FUND.

To the President and Members of the Board of Education, Chicago, Ill.

GENTLEMEN:—The late Michael Reese, of San Francisco, having made us Trustees of a Fund to be distributed in various charities as we may think proper, we have decided to donate to the Board of Education of Chicago, as a permanent fund, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2,000), to be known as the "Michael Reese Fund," the interest of which we desire used for the purpose of purchasing school books for poor children attending the Public Schools of the City.

Respectfully,

Chicago, June 12, 1879.

HESING GERMAN FUND.

To the President and Members of the Board of Education of the City of Chicago.

GENTLEMEN:—Twenty-five years ago this very day I began attending the Kinzie School. Since that time I have always taken a deep interest in this School, and have carefully watched its progress in every direction.

Ten years ago, when I was a member of your Honorable Body, it was my good fortune and extreme pleasure to be the Committeeman for the Kinzie School. Being a member of the Committee on German I took a special interest in the teaching of that language, and paid particular attention to the graded course of German instruction. At that time I was struck with the fact that there were many children of poor parents who could not study German because they did not have the means to purchase the necessary books.

In a great cosmopolitan city like ours where the knowledge of another language besides one's mother tongue is of great benefit, especially to those who are poor, and who are compelled to make their livelihood by being thrown in contact with the many heterogeneous elements that go to make up Chicago, it has seemed to me that no child, if he so desires, should grow up in ignorance and not be allowed to follow his inclination simply because his parents were too poor to provide the necessary text books.

For the purpose of obviating to some extent, at least, this difficulty, I enclose my check for $50.00, and wish the Secretary to draw on me annually for a like amount.

I therefore ask the acceptance by your Honorable Body of this amount as a gift to be called the "Hesing German Fund," to be used in purchasing German text books for indigent children who take German instruction in the Kinzie School. If, at the end of the year, this amount is not entirely exhausted, then the balance is to be used in purchasing German text books for indigent children who take German instruction in the Newberry School.

I remain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WASHINGTON HESING.

Chicago, October 6th, 1882.

The basis on which the money received from Mr. Hesing from year to year was to be expended was modified in the following communication presented to the Board of Education, October 25, 1883:

To the Board of Education.

GENTLEMEN:—In my communication to your Honorable Body of Oct. 6, 1882, establishing the "Hesing German Fund," I said "If, at the end of the year, this amount is not entirely exhausted, then the balance is to be used in purchasing German text books for indigent children who take German instruction in the Newberry School."

As I am now informed that there is an ample fund for providing all indigent children in the Newberry School with text books, I desire, with your permission, to amend said communication so that it shall read, "If, at the end of the year, this amount is not entirely exhausted, that the balance is to be used in establishing a prize for each class in German in the Kinzie School, this prize to be given to that scholar whose average for the entire year is the highest." It shall be known as "The Hesing Prize for Excellence in German."

208 Reports of Standing Committees.

If, after these prizes are awarded and there be any surplus, then the remainder shall be expended in the purchase of German books for the library of the Kinzie School.

There is at present a credit of $27.60 to the "Hesing German Fund," which I would respectfully ask to be disposed of in the manner indicated above.

Inclosed please find my check for the annual donation for the year 1883-84.

Yours,

WASHINGTON HESING.

Upon the opening of the Thomas Hoyne School, the grammar pupils heretofore attending Kinzie School were transferred to the Thomas Hoyne School, leaving the Kinzie School a Primary School. At the meeting of the Board held December 30, 1885, the following communication was received from Mr. Hesing :

To the Board of Education of the City of Chicago :

GENTLEMEN:—I understand that the Thomas Hoyne School has taken the place of the Kinzie School, to which I have donated annually fifty dollars, for the purpose of establishing a "Hesing German Fund." Lest there might be any difference of opinion regarding the transfer of the money belonging to said Fund, I desire, hereby, to give my consent to the distribution of any moneys of the Hesing Fund to the scholars of the Thomas Hoyne School providing, however, that, if at any time German is taught again in the Kinzie School, these scholars shall participate in the benefits of the Fund.

Inclosed please find my check for this year's donation.

Yours,

WASHINGTON HESING.

At the meeting of the Board held March 16, 1892, the following communication was received from Mr. Hesing:

Mr. S. Johnston, Clerk of Board of Education:

DEAR SIR:—I find that there is a balance of $114.35 to the credit of the Hesing German Fund. The original intention of this Fund was to purchase books for the children of poor parents who took instruction in German in the Kinzie or Thomas Hoyne Schools. The requirements of those Schools are not sufficient to exhaust the annual donation of $50.00. I have allowed the Principal of the Thomas Hoyne School to expend moneys, not otherwise required, for the purchase of medals and prize books. This even has not exhausted the Fund.

I would now respectfully ask you to allow the Supervisor of German to expend whatever balances there are for the purchase of books for children taking German instruction, who are unable to purchase text books for this study, regardless of location.

Respectfully,

WASHINGTON HESING.

W. K. SULLIVAN FUND.

Hon. M. A. Delany, President of Board of Education :

Dear Sir:—With the permission of the Board of Education I desire to donate to the School Fund, to be used in such manner as the Board may direct, the sum of $300 received by me as Trustee of School Fund Property, in excess of my expenses and necessary compensation.

My preference would be that the sum be reserved as a permanent Fund, the annual interest thereon to be applied to the purchase of a prize to be given at the close of each year to the grammar school pupil most proficient in Drawing.

The above award is subject to the order of the Board.

Yours very respectfully,

Chicago, April 4, 1881.

W. K. SULLIVAN.

For several years past, by consent of Mr. Sullivan, the award has been made to the school furnishing the best work during the year, and not to individual pupils.

CALHOUN FUND.

Mrs. Pamela C. Calhoun, who died August 14, 1889, widow of the late John Calhoun, after whom the "Calhoun School" is named made the following provision in her last will and testament:

I direct my executor to pay $700 to the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, for the benefit of the Calhoun School, to be expended in the purchase of books of reference, travels, biography, history of our own country, and standard works of fiction and poetry, at intervals, as the good of the school may require.

Two hundred dollars of this bequest was expended in the purchase of books for a library for this school, and the balance of five hundred dollars has been invested in a permanent Fund, the interest of which is to be expended for the purchase of books for the library of the School.

SHELDON FUND.

The following communication was presented to the Board at the meeting of February 18th, 1891:

Louis Nettelhorst, Esq., President of Board of Education:

DEAR SIR:—I am requested by the Executors of the will of Edwin H. Sheldon, formerly of this city, to notify you that they are directed by said will

“To pay out of said property the sum of twenty-five hundred ($2,500) Dollars to the Board of Education of the City of Chicago, the income from which sum shall be used in prizes or awards to the most deserving pupils of the Sheldon School, in such way as the said Board may deem best to advance the efficiency and usefulness of said School.”

I should be glad at any time to confer with the proper representative of your Board with reference to the immediate payment of this sum.

Yours very truly,

J. S. NORTON.

At the meeting of the Board held March 4, 1891, the Committee on Judiciary presented a report recommending that the School Agent receipt to the Executors for the amount of the bequest, that he obtain a copy of the provision of the will relating to such bequest, and that he open an account with said Fund, which was concurred in by the Board.

For a statement of the receipts and expenditures on account of these Special Funds and the investment of the same, see report of Committee on Finance, pages 158-160.

DEAF MUTE DAY SCHOOLS.

The problem of how best to obtain results in Deaf Mute Schools in a city so peculiarly situated geographically as Chicago, is one not easy to solve, and which requires the careful attention of the Committee. That deaf mute children can, as a rule, obtain much better training in an institution than by attending day schools is an undoubted fact, and could parents be contented to part with such unfortunate children, and there were sufficient room in such institutions as the State School at Jacksonville, your Committee would certainly advise the closing of all the day schools here. Unfortunately, Jacksonville is overcrowded. Many parents, from the very tenderness of their feelings for such afflicted children, will not let them go away from home, but will make any sacrifice to educate them under their own supervision. One instance is worth mentioning here:—a poor woman, the wife of a laboring man, has two deaf mute boys, and besides performing all her other duties, she walks every day nearly two miles to take the boys to school, and goes after them every afternoon,—no small labor in that ; but she says, “I cannot trust them to any one, they are so helpless.” A careful examination of the school census returns has been made by the Committee, and the number of deaf mutes under twenty-one years is found to be much less than had been estimated (two hundred and eighty-three.)

A large proportion of these attend the deaf mute parochial schools, which are adapted to the care of such children by having a home attached where the children are kept from Monday until Friday. In this way the parochial schools overcome the difficulty under which we labor, of having to sacrifice efficiency to number, by having several small schools instead of one large graded school, like the Horace Mann, in Boston. Were Chicago differently located, so that all these children could be collected in one locality, there would be no difficulty in having one first-class school that could successfully compare with even the famous Horace Mann, but such a school is an impossibility here unless some arrangement could be made for boarding the children, as has been done by the parochial schools.

During the past year, four schools have been maintained. One in the North Division, with three pupils registered, but only two in attendance. As this school was in a rented building, requiring extra fuel and janitor service, besides a teacher, we have advised its discontinuance. One in the South Division, with eight pupils registered. This was also in a rented building, under the same conditions, and the Committee have advised its removal to a vacant room in the Haven School building. The largest number of pupils has been in the Scammon School, mostly advanced scholars of an age that permits of their going a distance. Twenty-three are registered there. The fourth school is at Wicker Park, with eight pupils. This seems a small number, but when it is appreciated that each of these is in a different grade, and must have individual instruction, it will be readily understood that six deaf mutes require as much attention as a class of thirty hearing children. Within the last thirty years immense strides have been made in the methods of instruction of deaf mutes, and the Chicago Schools have unfortunately not kept pace with the schools elsewhere, even allowing for the necessary local disadvantages. Little or no attempt has been made to teach articulation and lip-reading, which is capable of doing so much to prevent the deaf mute from keeping so completely isolated from his hearing fellows. By condensing the Schools, and thus reducing the expenses of rented buildings, we feel justified in employing a teacher of articulate speech in each school. In many schools at the present day only speech is taught, no signs. The general consensus of opinion is, however, that best results are obtained by the combined method. How much can be accomplished is shown by two instances which we will mention: in an oral examination of an art class at Boston the first prize was taken by a deaf mute. In a competitive drill of students, one attracted particular attention of the reviewing officer, who called him out, and after conversing with him for some time was much astonished at being told that he was conversing with a deaf mute.

THOMAS BRENNAN, ESQ.,
Chairman Committee on School Management.

SIR: I herewith respectfully submit my third report as Supervisor of Evening Schools.

The Evening School season of 1891-92 was more successful than any that has preceded it in the history of these schools. The average evening attendance of pupils throughout the entire season was nearly twelve hundred in excess of that of the preceding year, while the number of schools opened was only three greater than the year before, and with but a small average increase in the number of teachers.

The Evening Schools were opened October 5, 1891, in forty-eight school buildings, and were continued, with the usual Christmas intermission, till the 25th March, 1892, a period of twenty-four weeks, in thirty-three school buildings. Fifteen schools were closed before the end of the season, as follows:

Brighton	School in session	8 weeks,	Average attendance	64

Some of these schools, although small, and unable to continue the entire season, it seems desirable to open from year to year, to accommodate people living in their vicinity who could not well attend other schools; but others might remain closed altogether without causing any great inconvenience to the pupils attending them. Thus the pupils of the King School could find convenient accommodations, at the Calhoun or Brainard, those of the Brighton School, at either the Holden or the Brighton Park, and the pupils of the Pullman (Lake) at either the Hendricks or the Sherwood.

TEACHERS.

The whole number of teachers employed during the season, exclusive of the principals, was two hundred and ninety-seven. Two hundred and thirty-nine of this number did good work, fifty-two fair work, and six poor work. After what appeared to be a fair trial the services of the poor teachers were dispensed with.

That our Evening Schools are improving in the character and spirit of the work from year to year, there can be no doubt.

A large proportion of the teachers are employed year after year, who thus acquire a more intelligent conception of the needs of their pupils and are able to direct their instruction to more definite ends.

PUPILS.

It is very gratifying to note a growing popularity of our Evening Schools, as shown by the large increase in the attendance of pupils.

It has always been a matter of inquiry why the schools are not better attended. Yet, if the inquirer will consider that after a day of toil, the pleasant home or the cheerful street is more attractive to the average boy or girl than the school room and the sometimes dry and uninteresting lesson, he will find a ready answer to his question.

The following table gives the number enrolled, the average attendance for each month during the season, and the number of certificates issued:

The number of rooms used exclusively by foreign pupils was seventy-eight, an increase of twenty over the preceding year. The great majority of these pupils are adults who wish to become familiar with the English language as speedily as possible. In most of the schools some of the simpler United States Histories are put into their hands, and by this means they learn not only to read, but at the same time acquire a knowledge of our country, its institutions and laws, which they would not so readily obtain otherwise.

There were twenty-two rooms of exclusively German pupils, seventeen of Scandinavian pupils, nine of Bohemian pupils, and eight of Polish pupils. The other foreign rooms were composed of Hollanders, Italians, Russians, and of mixed nationalities. In the classified foreign rooms, teachers of the same nationality were generally employed.

The following table gives the nationality of pupils:

HIGH SCHOOLS.

Previous to last season the number of High Schools for instruction in mechanical drawing, shorthand and book-keeping was limited to one—the building on West Monroe Street near Halsted—which was patronized by pupils from all parts of the city.

Last fall the Board authorized the opening of additional schools for instruction in these branches, namely: The North Division High School, the South Division High School, the Englewood High School and the Lake High School, and also authorized these studies to be taught at the school at Pullman.

In all these cases the wisdom of the Board was verified in their establishment, and the hope that they would be well attended was fully realized.

The school at Pullman ought to be classed with the other Evening High Schools the coming year.

I present, herewith, the number enrolled, the average weekly membership and the average evening attendance at the High Schools for the season:

In concluding this report I desire to state the schools were never in better condition than they were last year, and that the teachers' work was never more satisfactorily performed.

In the management of the schools due attention was paid to economy, and schools were closed, and teachers dismissed when occasion seemed to require such action.

Respectfully submitted,

A. H. VANZWOLL,

Supervisor of Evening Schools.

The School Children's Aid Society of the Woman's Club reports that they have furnished with clothing and shoes seven hundred and sixty-two children, who could not otherwise have attended school.

The County Agent, and the Chicago Relief and Aid Society have also contributed clothing and shoes for destitute children so that they might attend school.

The United Hebrew Charities and Russian Refugee Aid Society reported that they had expended over twenty-five hundred dollars for clothing and shoes so that these children might attend school.

Your attention is called to the number of non-attendants placed in school and also to the verification of Principals as to those returned to school. The signature of each Principal is attached, showing that 4,705 of these children attended school sixteen weeks and more, which is the maximum of the law.

REPORT OF SUPERVISOR OF

WM. BOLDENWECK, ESQ.

Chairman of Committee on Physical Culture.

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor of submitting to you a report regarding Physical Culture in our Public Schools.

Introduced as an experiment in four of our schools under the supervision of one special teacher, Physical Culture has increased rapidly.

After six months' trial it was adopted for the whole Grammar Department at the end of the school year 1886, and eight more teachers for this work were appointed. In January, 1889, upon the request of principals and teachers, Physical Culture was introduced into the Primary Department; in May, 1889, into the High Schools; and in September, 1891, into the Schools of the annexed districts.

The instructor gives one lesson a week in the High Schools. The duration of a lesson consists, ac-according to the principal's programme, from twenty minutes to a school hour.

There is an exception to this rule in the North West Division High School, where the pupils practice the exercises thirty minutes twice a week.

Each Grammar School is visited by the teacher of Physical Culture twice a week, each Primary School twice a month, and the Primary as well as Grammar Department in Schools of the annexed districts once a week.

This programme for the latter was found necessary, as there are many schools in those districts with only a few grammar rooms. The duration of a lesson in physical culture is ten minutes. The exercises have to be practiced daily; on days when the instructor does not visit the school room the class teacher is obliged, according to the rules of the Board, to conduct the exercises.

The movements in the Primary Grades consist of calisthenics and marching exercises—in the Grammar Grades of calisthenics, marching and wand exercises.

The same exercises are practised in the High Schools and in such of these schools as have halls or large corridors, instruction in Dumb-bell and Indian club exercises is also given.

Calisthenics in our Public Schools so far have been a success, as principals as well as teachers assist our special teachers to make their work successful, but I think it was a wise step on the part of the Board of Education to provide a gymnasium in a new high school building.

Calisthenics with or without apparatus may be sufficient for pupils in the Primary and lower Grammar grades, but the pupils in the higher grades in the Grammar Schools and especially the scholars in the High Schools ought to have the opportunity to practice heavy gymnastics. Knowledge of the value of practising physical culture in schools has increased; there is at present hardly a college or private school in our country, without a gymnasium, the Public Schools only have been neglected. Chicago made the first step for the advancement of physical culture in this direction, for the gymnasium of the North-West Division High School is as I believe the first gymnasium in connection with a Public School in our country.

The gymnasium, 90 feet by 40 feet and 26 feet high, is well supplied with apparatus for individual as well as class-work. Exercises are practiced there twice a week during the school session and after school-time, the boys practice heavy gymnastics under the supervision of an Instructor twice a week, and the girls twice a week.

I know very well that it will be difficult for the Board to erect a gymnasium in connection with every Grammar School, but nearly every school has a play-ground, and I think I meet the opinion of many principals and teachers if I suggest, that these play grounds ought to be supplied with gymnastic apparatus, for jumping and climbing exercises at least. I believe it could be done without much expense, and I take the liberty to recommend a trial.

The erecting of out-door gymnasiums was started in Boston, and there are now in that city separate places for boys and girls, which are visited by thousands.

What was a success in another city of our country will be without doubt a success in Chicago, and I wish to refer again to the recommendation made by me of placing suitable apparatus in some or all of the school-yards.

I take pleasure in commending in general the instruction of my assistants and of the regular teachers, and find that the work in gymnastics in the schools, High, Grammar and Primary is in a healthful and growing condition.

Very respectfully yours,

HENRY SUDER.

Supervisor of Physical Culture.
